Nixon to Students—Try Out the System

WASHINGTON (AP)—In his most conciliatory speech to American youth, President Nixon has urged the young to try out the system in "an alliance of the generations."

Speaking before 8,500 students and faculty members at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln Thursday, Nixon said:

"There can be no generation gap in America. The destiny of this nation is not divided into yours and ours—it is one destiny. We share it together. We are responsible for it together."

Apart from a flurry of "Peace Now" chants, soon drowned in a chorus of boos when he was introduced, Nixon was well received—better in fact, than on any campus since he took office.

The President, who stopped in Lincoln on a flight back to Washington from Southern California, told five newsmen traveling aboard his jet he feels his audience listened carefully to his words.

Alluding to the fact he was interrupted only once by applause "a full generation of peace"—Nixon said his address was not written with applause lines in mind.

"I'll be interrupted 35 times when I give my State of the Union," he said, referring to an address to the new Congress Jan. 22, "and it won't mean a thing."

Nixon was obviously pleased by his reception on the Nebraska campus, which has been relatively free of student unrest.

After paying tribute to the university's undefeated football team, and presenting to the coach a bronze plaque commemorating the fact Nebraska was The Associated Press' 1970 gridiron champion, Nixon talked at length about his conception of the role of young people in the nation.

Proposing "an alliance of the generations," he said:

"Let us together seek out those ways by which the commitment and the compassion of one generation can be linked to the will and the experience of another, so that together we can better serve America and America better serve mankind."

Referring to extension of federal voting rights to all those 18 and older, Nixon said:

"So much is in your hands now. To those who have believed the system could not be moved, I say try it. To those who have thought the system was impenetrable, I say there is no longer a need to penetrate—that door's open."

Nixon acknowledged that the young might not always prevail, however.

"It is in the very nature of a free society that no one can win all the time," he said. "No one can have his own way all the time, and no one is right all the time."

Nixon said he probably will spend part of the weekend at his Camp David retreat near Thurmont, Md. Jokingly, he said he had resisted heavy pressure from his Florida friend, C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, to attend professional football's championship Super Bowl game in Miami Sunday.

Sgt. Hutto Cleared

Another My Lai Acquittal

FT. McPHERSON, Ga. (AP) — Sgt. Charles Hutto, who drove a truck and chopped cotton before joining the Army, has been acquitted of assault with intent to murder My Lai villagers during an infantry operation in 1968.

The verdict was returned Thursday by a jury of six officers who deliberated a little more than two hours.

Hutto was the second soldier to be tried and acquitted on charges arising from the attack on My Lai. S. Sgt. David Mitchell of St. Francisville, La., was found innocent Nov. 20 at Ft. Hood, Tex., of assault with intent to kill.

Hutto, 22, of Tallulah, La., an eighth grade dropout, stood at attention in the cramped, paneled courtroom at 3rd Army headquarters as Col. Donald Laffoon, president of the court-martial, announced the verdict.

All of the jurors were Vietnam veterans.

Glancing at a piece of paper in his hands and then staring straight at Hutto, Laffoon, a bespectacled, mustached officer from Highland, Ind., said:

"Not guilty, your honor."

Hutto, deadpanned but blinking, took a deep breath and exhaled. The soldier, whose wife, Brenda, was weeping among the spectators, then turned and embraced his lawyers.

The soldier joined his pretty, blonde wife and the two walked out of the old, red-brick building into a misting rain.

Still blinking back tears, Mrs. Hutto told newsmen that she had done "a lot of praying" and "figured it would be all right."

"I have faith in the Army," she said.

Hutto, smiling and holding his wife's arm, declined to comment when asked whether testimony at his trial had produced an accurate picture of what happened at the Vietnamese village.

A witness at the Calley court-martial tells about a pep talk on the eve of the My Lai attack. Story page 3.

"I'm not going to answer any question about My Lai," he said. "That's all I've got to say about it."

"That's all behind me now. That's in the past."

He said he expected to leave the Army by next week, take a job as the manager of an Atlanta ice cream shop and return to school. The soldier has been held in the Army a year past his scheduled separation date. He enlisted in 1967 for three years.

Edward Magill of Miami, Fla., Hutto's civilian lawyer, called the case "an important one—for Charlie Hutto and the Army."

Magill, a lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserves, said in his closing statement Thursday the Army's entire system of discipline was on trial with Hutto.

"Think about what you would have if every time a private got an order he stopped to question it," said Magill. "Think about the other Charlie Huttos in the Army."

The defense contended that Hutto entered the tiny hamlet of My Lai intent not on murdering civilians but on following orders he had received from Capt. Ernest Medina, the commander of Charley Company, and other officers.

Witnesses testified during the trial that Medina ordered his soldiers to "kill every living thing in the village."

Col. Kenneth Howard of Atlanta, the military judge, said the testimony left little doubt that Medina gave an illegal order. The question the jury must answer, he said, was whether Hutto knew it was illegal when he fired on the villagers.

Hutto admitted in a sworn statement that he shot at civilians during the operation but said he only did so because he thought he was following orders.

Magill held that neither Hutto nor the other Charley Company troops had ever been told of illegal orders or how to react to them.

He said it never occurred to Hutto, described by a psychologist as incapable of forming the intent to kill or of disobeying orders, that an illegal order would be passed down the chain of command.

Wildcat Work Stoppage By New York Policemen

NEW YORK (AP) — Hundreds of city policemen, angered by a court decision that left their pay parity dispute unresolved, refused to patrol their beats today in a spreading wildcat work stoppage.

Captains, lieutenants, sergeants and detectives were ordered to fill the gap and a City Hall spokesman said the emergency measures assured adequate protection. There was no immediate indication of an increase in crime.

The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association claimed the job action was "virtually complete" but police headquarters said the extent of the stoppage varied from precinct to precinct. It declined to give a breakdown.

Telephone checks by newsmen indicated that wide areas of Brooklyn, the Bronx and upper Manhattan had only sparse patrols. Police headquarters said all emergency calls were being answered.

The job action began soon after word of the court decision in Albany was announced Thursday.

PBA President Edward J. Kiernan appealed to the men to stay on the job until a delegate meeting on Tuesday. "If action must be taken, I ask that it be a decision made by the delegate body," he said in a television appearance.

Nonetheless, the stoppage spread during the evening.

Mayor John V. Lindsay said in an 11 p.m. statement that "the city will take every step necessary to protect the public safety. I would hope that every officer . . . will respect his oath of office and his badge."

He summoned his staff and top police brass to meetings this morning.

Chief Inspector Michael J. Codd ordered all members of the force to work 12-hour shifts starting at Thursday midnight. All administrative work was suspended and special units reassigned to patrol duty. All vacations and days off were canceled.

The patrolmen were upset because the state's highest court ruled that a lower court trial was necessary to decide the PBA's claim for a $100-a-month increase for its 30,000 members under a patrolmen-sergeant pay parity formula.

In its 4-3 decision, the Court of Appeals in Albany overturned two lower court findings that upheld the PBA contention.

In addition to touching off the police job action, the court decision threatened to further snarl contract negotiations between the city and its patrolmen, firemen and sanitationmen. All three contracts expired Jan. 1.

The basic issue is the PBA's claim that its 1968 contract calls for salaries of patrolmen and sergeants to be maintained at a 3-to-3.5 ratio. When sergeants were given a raise, to maintain their parity with fire lieutenants, the patrolmen sought the $100-a-month increase to restore their ratio.

But the city balked saying that if the raise was granted it would touch off an endless spiral of increases. It said the ratio agreement had not been made part of "a formal, written collective-bargaining contract."

Israeli Raid Kills 10 Guerrillas

By United Press International

Israel said today its forces made a retaliatory attack against an Arab guerrilla complex 25 miles deep in Lebanon early today, killing 10 guerrillas while suffering six wounded.

An Al Fatah spokesman in Beirut said the guerrillas fought off the helicopter and gunboat attack while inflicting "large" casualties on the Israelis.

The attack was the second into Lebanon in three weeks and the deepest penetration into the Arab nation since a helicopter-borne commando force hit airlines at Beirut Airport Dec. 28, 1968, in retaliation for the bombing of Israeli El Al Airline planes.

A spokesman in Tel Aviv said today's strike was in retaliation for a Jan. 2 attempt by guerrilla frogmen from the complex—located south of Sidon on the Mediterranean—to "kidnap an Israeli citizen." Five members of the six-man guerrilla underwater team were captured along the Israeli coast when they tried to infiltrate the country. Who they planned to kidnap was not revealed.

The spokesman said the Israeli raiders "killed at least 10 terrorists and wounded many more." The Israelis, he said, suffered six wounded and dynamited three houses, a bivouac and several "underground buildings which served the terrorists for housing and storage." Also destroyed was a raft on which a rocket launcher had been installed.

In Beirut, an Al Fatah guerrilla spokesman said the Israeli sea and helicopter-borne force "attacked our bases near Sarafand after midnight today. The Israelis used shells and cannons from boats and helicopters, but our commandos resisted and stopped the Israelis from getting to our bases."

The guerrillas said Israeli casualties were "large" while only three guerrillas were wounded, but the Beirut national news agency said two guerrillas were killed.

Other developments in the Middle east today:

—In Jordan, the country's shaky cease-fire went into its second day with both sides collecting weapons from civilian militiamen they have been unable to control. Thursday, the first day of the truce between Jordanian soldiers and Palestinian guerrillas, scattered shooting was heard, but today it appeared calm. The cease-fire ended a week of the worst fighting since the Septembr civil war.

—High Arab sources at the United Nations in New York said Thursday there was nothing new in Israeli peace proposals submitted to U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring during his visit to Jerusalem last week.

—Palestinian guerrillas in Beirut said they blew up Haifa-Tel Aviv railway tracks Monday and derailed a train, killing and wounding a large number of Israelis.

DETAINED FOR QUESTIONING—Israeli security forces detain three Arabs from the El Shatti refugee camp for questioning in occupied Gaza city during spot checks aimed at preventing further guerrilla or terrorists attacks. In another development, Israeli troops moved 25 miles into Lebanon on Thursday to strike at guerrilla camp. (UPI RADIOPHOTO)

Valley Local Meets Here

The State Phone Situation

NEW YORK (AP) — A telephone workers strike which widened Thursday to many areas up-state threatened to spread even farther today despite warnings of heavy fines and deadlines set by a federal judge.

Early today, U.S. Dist. Judge John M. Canella ordered the 15,000 strikers in New York City to end their five-day walkout and return to work later today or pay a $60,000 fine for civil contempt.

At the same time, Canella warned the international union, the AFL-CIO Communications Workers of America, that it would be in civil contempt liable to even heavier fines if workers across the state were not back to work by Monday.

The strike began when repairmen, installers and other technicians of CWA Local 1101 walked out in protest over the company's alleged policy of offering more overtime and other benefits to 1,000 out-of-town technicians brought in to help improve service.

Locally, members of Local 1120 with branches in Kingston, Monticello, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Catskill and Hudson, met throughout the day at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post Home on Delaware Avenue to discuss the situation.

Robert Smith, president of the 900-member Hudson Valley local, said that pickets were ordered out as of 5 p.m. yesday.

On Thursday, technicians in Albany, Schenectady, Platts burg, Utica and other upstate cities joined the walkout and urged a strike vote in Syracuse, Buffalo and other cities.

Also involved were craftsmen from the long line department of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., and its manufacturing subsidiary, the Western Electric Co.

Thursday morning, Local 1101 members voted at a mammoth rally to continue the strike in defiance of a court order and mounting fines, after the New York Telephone Co. had refused to send the out-of-town workers home.

Canella imposed the 2 p. m. deadline during a 10-hour court session in which he sought to have union and company lawyers work out a formula for arbitration to end the dispute.

Saugerties Drug Arrests, 279 Decks of Heroin Found

SAUGERTIES — The arrest of four young men by alert Saugerties police at 4:15 p.m. Thursday, resulted in charges involving dangerous drugs and the seizure of 279 decks of heroin and a large bag of cultivated marijuana, according to Police Chief Gordon Keeley.

Chief Keeley identified the four taken into custody on Partition Street by Officers Harry Vickery and Marvin Osborne, as Bruce H. Williams, 21, of 11 Boulevard Drive, Hicksville; Noel Jeffery Weiss, 22, Seaford; Kenneth Everson, 21, of 6 East Avenue, Hicksville, and Max Schwartz, 22, Forrest Hills.

Keeley said the car in which the men were traveling was impounded.

Arraigned before Village Police Justice David Goble, Everson was fined $50 for unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle, $50 for possessing implements adapted for use of drugs. Williams was fined $50 for possessing a loaded firearm—a carbine rifle.

The four were committed to the county jail in lieu of $500 bail each on charges of possessing dangerous drugs. BCI Investigator David Wachtel of the Kingston state police assisted in the investigation relating to drugs.

Highland state police arrested four men and a woman Thursday night on charges of criminal possession of dangerous drugs sixth degree and accused them of possessing a small quantity of marijuana.

Troopers G. P. Rebhan and B. D. Mitchell booked the five as Robert Felton, 23, of Haddonfield, N. J., Stephen Forman, 21, of New York City, Lloyd Kreitzer, 26, of Burbank, Calif., Donald Young, 25, of Malverne, L. I., and Rita Heathcote, 25, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

At arraignment before New Paltz Town Justice Rexford Schneider, Felton explained that he was the user and owner of the drugs and the others had nothing to do with it. Judge Schneider dismissed the counts against the other four and released them from custody.

Felton pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $25. The fine was paid.

Ulster Okays A Sewer Move

LAKE KATRINE — Authorization to advertise for bids for the first portion of the construction of the $4.5 million planned sewer [illegible] approved by Ulster Town Board at its Thursday night meeting at Lake Katrine Grange Hall.

Bids for the main truck lines will be opened Thursday, Feb. 11 at 7 p.m. in town clerk's office [illegible]. The [illegible] were not known at this time. The Town Board will meet with J. Kenneth Fraser, engineer of the project at an informal meeting Thursday.

On a recommendation of the town Planning Board, the Town Board [illegible] resolution ordered that no further building permits be issued to Commonwealth Land Development Co., which is constructing an apartment complex on [illegible] Road. The order will be in effect until further clarification is received on the design of access roads to the project.

The board by resolution banned the use of town roads by snowmobiles except if an emergency is determined by the Town Board.

Requests for setting 30 mile-per-hour limits in two sections of town, including Morton Boulevard through Sunset Park, Glen Park to Boggs Hills Road, and in Whittier Development were heard and the Town Board will petition the State Department of Transportation [illegible] of these requests.

The Town Board by the inquiry of Bernard Cody of Glenerie about another referendum on a town building complex, said it would consider the matter. The town building plan was defeated on Tuesday 844 to 702.

The board authorized Superintendent of Highways Edgar P. Elliot to prepare specifications for the purchase of two new trucks to update the department's equipment.

Supervisor Carmine Sabino and Assessors Chairman Joseph Lohmaier were named delegate and alternate to attend the Association of Towns meeting Feb. [illegible] in New York City.

City's Snow Job Topic for Kiwanis

By WADE BURKHART

KINGSTON — The vexing question of snow removal occupied much of Kingston Mayor Francis R. Koenig's lengthy question and answer session with the Kiwanis Club of Kingston, held in the Gov. Clinton Hotel Thursday.

The mayor, in response to questions, repeatedly emphasized that the primary difficulty faced by road plowing and snow removal crews is the presence of parked cars on streets to be plowed. On some of the city's narrower streets, such as Fair Street, the city's 12-foot snowplows can't pass if cars are parked on both sides of the street, according to Koenig.

Kingston has a total of approximately 125 miles of street to be plowed following a snowstorm, a total of approximately 700 lane miles (for instance, a plow must travel to properly plow the streets). According to Koenig, even with all 23 pieces of city apparatus in operation, the job takes 12 hours.

Present city ordinances concerning overnight parking are inadequate, according to the Mayor. In addition, the provision for towing away cars parked on the street during a snow emergency has been ineffective, as the city has no tow trucks of its own, and must rely on private towing vehicles. And, said Koenig, "try to get hold of a tow truck during a snowstorm. They all have plows on, and are out making money."

According to Koenig, the city may have to investigate such measures as alternate-side-of-the-street parking and no overnight parking, in order to solve the snow removal program.

Responding to a question concerning the city's indebtedness Koenig announced that it was the goal of the city to have no outstanding notes at the end of 1971, other than those on the new City Hall. He pointed out that this year's budget calls for the city to reduce its debt by over $373,000.

In other areas, Koenig said that Kingston Hospital had expressed an interest in the old City Hall building when it was vacated, and that it would probably be disposed of by public auction.

Rather than furnish increased assistance to the Kingston Area Library, Koenig has recommended that the Library Board meet with the city's Finance Committee in an effort to determine other sources of money for the library.

The Second Murder Trial—and the Ninth Day

By WALTER S. CLARK

KINGSTON — The ninth day of the second trial of two men accused of the murder of a Westchester County deputy sheriff on the Thruway near Plattekill in 1968 opened this morning before County Judge Raymond J. Mino and a jury with Deputy Sheriff Singer facing examination by counsel.

Singer, 60, of North Tarrytown, was with the late Deputy William Fitzgerald, 63, on the afternoon of Sept. 13, 1968 when Fitzgerald was shot to death during an alleged escape try by three Auburn prison inmates who were being transported to White Plains for a court hearing in another case.

The defendants at the trial in progress before a jury of 11 men and one woman, are Charles Culhane, 25, and Gerald McGivern, 26. The third inmate was also killed in the alleged shootout that was investigated by State Police from Troop F.

Culhane and McGivern have pleaded innocent to the murder charge.

Singer was the third witness called by Assistant District Attornew James H. Kerr, who is prosecuting the case with Assistant District Attorney James H. Fisher. Preceding the deputy on the witness stand were Donald Parsons, a keeper of records for the State Department of Correction and William Bowerman, a brother of the dead inmate.

Singer underwent lengthy direct examination by Paul Vladimir, attorney for Culhane and Joshua N. Koplovitz, counsel for McGivern.

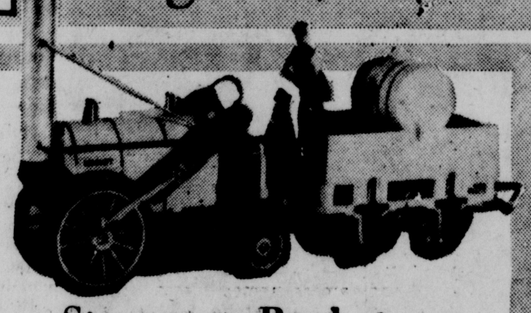

After the witness took the stand, Judge Mino cautioned defense counsel to advise their clients not to interrupt the proceeding by comments.

Singer related events of the day of the shooting incident. He said he stopped the car in which he, Fitzgerald and the three inmates were riding at a rest area to permit Bowerman to relieve himself. As the vehicle stopped, Singer testified, Culhane caught him around the neck with his cuffed hands and pulled him back. Bowerman did likewise to Fitzgerald, the witness said.

Witness Tells of My Lai Pep Talk

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — The rookie chief of the 11th Infantry Brigade gathered his company commanders for a pep talk on the eve of the My Lai attack, a court-martial witness says, and told them they hadn't been aggressive enough with the Viet Cong.

"Wipe them out for good," S. Sgt. Dennis R. Vasquez quoted the colonel as saying.

The next day, Capt. Ernest Medina's Charley Company swept into the village expecting to meet a fierce Viet Cong unit. Instead, the government claims, the Americans slaughtered uncounted numbers of defenseless Vietnamese civilians, including women and children.

The pep talk was related Thursday to the jury trying Lt. William L. Calley Jr. on charges of murdering 102 "Oriental human beings" in the village nearly three years ago. Calley led the 1st Platoon in Medina's company.

The testimony of Vasquez was offered to bolster the defense contention that officers far superior to Calley were responsible for the alleged civilian killings.

Vasquez, then a captain, was artillery liaison officer for the task force, a unit of the 11th Infantry.

The day before the March 16, 1968 assault, Vasquez testified, he was at a briefing conducted by Col. Oran Henderson who had taken command of the brigade the day before.

Vasquez, now stationed in Germany, holds a lower rank now than he did in 1968 because he left the service for a while, then rejoined.

Lt. Col. Frank A. Barker, the task force commander, was in that meeting, Vasquez said. So was Medina, Calley's immediate superior.

Barker died three months later in a helicopter crash.

Medina emerged from that briefing and gave one of his own to Charley Company, gathered around him in a circle at the Landing Zone Dottie staging area.

"Someone asked if we were supposed to kill women and children and everything," Medina's radio operator, James Errol Flynn, 22, testified.

"What was Capt. Medina's response to that question?"

"He replied, to kill everything that moved," said Flynn, who now works as a pipe fitter in Rochester, Minn.

Judge Reid Kennedy permitted the release of some heretofore confidential documents that had been shown to the six-officer jury while the courtroom was clear of spectators.

One of the documents is an order from Col. Nels A. Parson, Jr., chief of staff of the parent Americal Division, issued nearly a month after the My Lai operation.

It forbids further use of the term "search and destroy" in to human suffering, large sum wantonly create without regard at My Lai as search and destroy.

The Highway 4 Battle Produces Intense Fighting

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Allied spokesmen said today South Vietnamese rangers and armor ran into intense fighting shortly after clearing one of two Communist-held segments of the highway between Phnom Penh and Cambodia's principal seaport.

Cambodian troops pushing southwestward toward a linkup with the South Vietnamese reported little resistance as they neared strategic Pich Nil Pass, which was the first Communist-seized area of the road.

Military spokesmen said the South Vietnamese encountered heavy resistance shortly after sweeping through Stung Chay Pass on Highway 4 at a point 90 miles southwest of Phnom Penh late Thursday.

The South Vietnamese reported killing 41 Viet Cong and capturing 11 weapons in several hours of fighting at a cost of five dead and 28 wounded.

The combined South Vietnamese-Cambodian operation to clear the 120-mile-long highway involves more than 13,000 troops, with the Cambodians pushing southwest from Phnom Penh and the South Vietnamese driving northeast from the coast.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong had cut off the highway intermittently since the outbreak of fighting in Cambodia after the March 18, 1970, ouster of Prince Norodom Sihanouk but the Communists have held it consistently since Nov. 21 when North Vietnamese units overran and wiped out two Cambodian battalions.

The blockade of the highway has cut off the capital from its seaport and caused gasoline and electricity rationing in Phnom Penh.

Communiques from Saigon reported an American artillery man was killed and seven GIs wounded when they were hit by an 81mm mortar round fired by mistake by another American unit. Both were part of the Americal Division operating in the mountains of Western Quang Tin province, 50 miles southeast of Da Nang.

150 More Installations to Viets

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command says 150 more installations, ranging from major base camps to small pumping stations, will be turned over to the South Vietnamese as part of the Vietnamization program.

"So far more than 100 installations have been transferred to Republic of Vietnam armed forces," a spokesman said. "These are facilities and installations of all sizes."

The original cost of the 250 installations and facilities was roughly $60 million, he said, adding:

"Most of these installations were constructed to an austere standard with an estimated life of less than five years. Most of those turned over already were army unit base camps and small cantonment facilities, small troop housing facilities. We haven't really turned over any high-cost facilities."

The command isn't saying exactly what installations will be turned over in the future, but many likely will be Army camps and Navy, Marine and Air Force facilities as American troops are withdrawn.

The entire U.S. 3rd Marine Amphibious Force and 1st Marine Division at Da Nang are being withdrawn from Vietnam by next June, and their headquarters camps and other facilities likely will be turned over to the South Vietnamese.

When U.S. installations or facilities are declared surplus the command conducts a study to determine the best usage. The spokesman says the following possibilities are considered in order of priority:

—Use by another U.S. military unit in Vietnam.

—Transfer to the South Vietnamese armed forces.

—Transfer to another allied force in Vietnam.

—Use by a U.S. military unit outside Vietnam, if the facility can be moved economically.

—Use by another U.S. government agency in Vietnam.

Nasser Pictures Adorn a Dam Rite

ASWAN, Egypt (UPI)—Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, with Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny standing beside him, today officially inaugurated the Aswan High Dam.

The 366-foot-high dam is the first barrier to fully control the Nile, the world's longest river. It eliminates flooding which annually devastated this desert land, and will bring almost incalculable benefits for both Egypt and the Sudan.

Thousands of persons joined Sadat and Podgorny for the colorful opening ceremony at the city 600 miles south of Cairo. Podgorny held the post of honored guest since it was Soviet aid that provided most of the $1 billion necessary to construct the dam, which took 11 years to build and claimed 451 lives in the process.

Nasser's Birthday Today

Today was chosen for the inauguration since it would have been the 53rd birthday of the late President Gamal Abdel Nasser, who died Sept. 28. Nassar pushed the project to completion.

From the crest of the dam huge pictures of Nasser looked down upon the thousands of guests. Antiaircraft guns were much in evidence, pointed skyward for protection against any possibility of an attack despite a cease-fire with Israel.

Egyptian and Sudanese flags fluttered from every lamp post on the dam site and in the town of Aswan there were thousands of signs extolling the virtues of the dam. A few read, "Soviets are friends — Americans are not."

Holiday Atmosphere

Music blared from mobile vans touring Aswan streets as the whole town took a vacation for the event.

Podgorny joined Sadat in snipping two ribbons—one along the crest of the dam and another at the entrance to the power station which can provide 10 billion kilowatt hours of electricity annually to Egypt. The men also unveiled two small plaques dedicated to Nasser.

The dam itself was built in one of the most inhospitable spots on Earth. Work sometimes was suspended because the temperatures reached 135 degrees. Today was sunny and a relatively comfortable 85.

Buckley Looking to '76 And Hopes for a Repeat

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. James L. Buckley has indicated he hopes to be the Republican U.S. Senate nominee when he seeks re-election in 1976 as well as the candidate of New York's Conservative party.

Buckley conveyed this hope in an address Thursday before a closed-door meeting of the Republican National Finance committee, members present told UPI.

The New York Conservative, according to one GOP committee who supported him "corporately" in his 1970 campaign.

Nonetheless, Buckley indicated he hoped he would be able to thank the finance committee "six years from now" for their official financial support.

As a third party candidate, who defeated former Republican Sen. Charles Goodell, Buckley was ineligible for Republican national campaign support, even though he ran as a staunch defender of President Nixon.

But as a candidate of the New York GOP in 1976, Buckley would have the support of the national committee as well as other GOP finance organizations.

According to committee sources, Buckley declared that if Goodell had not run, he would have beaten the Democratic nominee, former Rep. Richard Ottinger, "by a clear majority."

The freshman senator, these sources said, denied that his election was "a fluke," but was symtomatic of a conservative trend rising in the country. He urged party leaders to "take advantage of it."

Buckley received a "cordial" reception, sources said, and warmly applauded at the conclusion of his remarks.

He spoke before the committee at the invitation of its chairman, Jeremiah Milbank Jr., New York City.

Memoriam

In loving memory of my wife, our mother, grandmother and great grandmother, Mrs. Julia Brodsky, who passed away on January 15, 1968.

What we would give to see you smile
And sit with you and talk awhile.
Day and night we think of you,
The things you used to say and do.
The blow was sudden, the shock was severe
To part with you so kind and dear.
We wonder why you had to die
Without a chance to say good bye.

Burial will be in Pine Bush Cemetery, Kerhonkson. Friends may call at the funeral home Saturday from 7 to 9 p.m. and Sunday from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Prisoner Swap

ACAPULCO, Mexico (UPI)—Martin Moreno Quintero, 50, escaped from the Acapulco prison in his wife's clothing, jail officials said today.

The officials said Mrs. Moreno carried a dress and shawl hidden under a basket of fruit into the prison Thursday during regular visiting hours.

Mayor of Newburgh Has a New Target

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (UPI) — Mayor George F. McKneally, a conservative who once backed a campaign against alleged welfare chiselers, now has a new target: private enterprise.

McKneally said Thursday he will file an $8 million lawsuit against the state for giving General Motors, the largest American manufacturing company, a "license to pollute."

The mayor said he objected to recent federal action regarding discharges into the Hudson River from GM's Chevrolet plant at Tarrytown.

The purpose of the suit, he said, would be to recover the $8 million Newburgh spent on building a sewage treatment plant under a state Health Department order.

"I am considerably aroused by the fact that General Motors, a wealthy corporation, has immunity to the law governing pollution of air and water," he said, "while the downtrodden taxpayer is punished for this violation."

He said he also objected to the firing of Assistant U.S. Attorney John Burns of New York City, who was in charge of anti pollution suits in the Southern District of New York.

Burns was dismissed Jan. 9, one day after the Justice Department and GM announced a consent judgment in the department's civil action against the Tarrytown pollution. The company agreed to halt discharges of toxic metals on Feb. 1, and build treatment facilities for other discharges.

However, Burns claimed Atty. Gen. John Mitchell intervened to prevent criminal action against the company. Mitchell denied it.

McKneally further charged the large auto manufacturers have been given immunity to pollute the air "to make an extra buck for the stockholders."

And he quoted former President Johnson ("one of my less favorite presidents") in saying "The anti-pollution law appears to be more loophole than law."

The 58-year-old McKneally, a plumbing contractor who has been mayor since 1968, has announced plans to seek re-election this November.

As a city councilman in 1961, he was one of the strongest supporters of attempts by then City Manager Joseph Mitchell to put welfare recipients to work.

C-H Rates Go Up on Monday

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) —Central Hudson Gas&Electric Corp. will increase gas and electric rates $5,213,000 Monday, the Public Service Commission announced today.

Central Hudson serves an area of about 2,600 square miles in the central portion of the Hudson Valley, including Beacon, Kingston, Newburgh and Poughkeepsie. It has 171,000 electric customers and 42,600 gas users.

The utility originally sought a rate increase of $6.9 million.

Under the increase, electric rates will go up an average of 9 per cent or $4.3 million and gas rates $813,000, or average of 8.3 per cent.

Shock of U.S. Returnees

The tens of thousands of Americans returning from military duty abroad, especially those coming home from Vietnam, have been away only a year under the policy of rotation. But hundreds of others, and their families, away in the Foreign Service and foreign branches of other government services who are away up to eight years, return home to a country that may give them a cultural shock over the changes they find in their native land on their return.

To soften the shock, the United States Information Agency has been conducting crash three-to-five day workshops for returned foreign service and civil service officers. The medium is America today in a nutshell. The course tries to convey what is happening to the United States in order to suggest new ways to represent and speak for their country, an aid to the learning or readjustment process, and a help to the communication problem.

In eight years, the changes have been unbelievable, and the news magazines he received did not keep the officer abroad posted. The curricula includes underground culture, black power, woman's lib, films, rock music, population pressures and pollution, student unrest, contemporary American literature, experimental theater, new concepts in urban architecture, everything the absentees missed. It is a new world and we need the returnees' help to improve it.

Political Generation Gap

The belief that the 18 to 20-year vote will have little effect on the national election is being refuted by the result of a sampling opinion by the Harris Survey. It found a deep generation gap over many issues that are in the public consciousness and that may polarize the voters in 1972.

Such issues as pollution control, equality for blacks, troop withdrawal from Vietnam by 1971, joint space exploration with the Soviet, increased aid to the poor, desegregation of schools now, and student protest found the new voters 13 to 33 per cent more in favor than their elders. On these other issues: drugs and pornography, work for welfare recipients, leniency of college administrators, the elders were 12 to 35 per cent more favorable than the youthful voters.

Young voters tend to classify themselves as Democrats or Independents, and a large number are not sure. How many will vote their convictions, and how many their party affiliations, will have much to do with the result of the coming election. That the new youthful voters will have a real impact cannot be gainsaid.

Gov. Ronald Reagan of California coined a phrase that will be heard in the fight to bring welfare payments under control. He pledged to eliminate from state welfare roles "those whose greed is greater than their need." Until federal law is changed, it will be a difficult pledge to keep.

The severest winter in Europe in years is being experienced all the way south to the Canary Islands, with Spain and Portugal reporting record low temperatures and heavy snowfalls. Helicopters and ski rescuers are bringing food to isolated villages. The whole continent below the Soviet is bound together by the freeze.

John Kelley, 18, drove 2,000 miles to be the first to be registered to vote in New York City under the new voting rights for youths. Kelley is a student at Notre Dame University. His dedication won him the plaudits of the New York City Board of Elections.

David Lawrence Says
'Declaration of War' Could Have Caused Complications

WASHINGTON — Some members of Congress are still making speeches which assert that the United States should not have undertaken to assist South Vietnam against its aggressors without a "declaration of war." There are plenty of factors, however, indicating that this country could have made a great mistake by adopting such a course.

In the first place, it would have been necessary under a "declaration of war" to halt commerce by sea from Red China and the Soviet Union to North Vietnam. Likewise, all other ships would have been subject to search and seizure. But primarily the United States would have been brought into direct conflict with the Soviets and Red Chinese. The question is whether the Russian Navy would have decided to protect its shipping and defy the American Navy. This is just one of the many complications that a "declaration of war" could have produced.

It is well known that the Soviets and the Red Chinese began sending munitions and military weapons and advisors into North Vietnam when Hanoi started its agression. Any "declaration of war" could have resulted in hostilities against Russian and Red Chinese groups stationed in North Vietnam.

Under the terms of the Southeast Asia treaty, the United States had committed itself to help the member and protocol nations who asked for aid. As for authority from Congress, President Johnson obtained in August 1964 what is known as the "Gulf of Tonkin Resolution" when American naval vessels were attacked by the North Vietnamese. At that time it was generally taken for granted that Congress, by its resolution, was giving consent to use American troops to carry out the mission of defending South Vietnam against aggression. The resolution was repealed recently, but Congress keeps on appropriating funds for the military operations in Vietnam.

What is overlooked by many critics is that America made a pledge to protect the smaller nations in Southeast Asia. If South Vietnam had not been assisted, most of the other countries in that area would have fallen under Communist attack. The United States was plainly fulfilling the commitment it made in the Southeast Asia Treaty, which had been ratified by the Senate. There was no necessity for a formal "declaration of war," as this could have meant America might have had to fight against Russia and Red China — who have been our real adversaries on the Asian continent and the chief allies of North Vietnam.

To go back now and say that there should have been a "declaration of war" is to argue that, whenever a treaty obligation is honored as a nation requests assistance, the United States must get authority from Congress for the use of the military forces. This in itself might intensify the difficult situations that arise when major powers like the Soviet Union and Communist China meddle in the affairs of smaller countries.

The Department of State and two Presidents of the United States — John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson — explained our duties under the Southeast Asia Treaty again and again. The Congress has been fully aware of the danger to the peoples of the Asian continent and of the possibility of a larger war. Each year appropriation bills have been passed authorizing military operations in Vietnam. This is a form of sanction which indicated to the world that the Congress, even without a "declaration of war," was not disapproving the American course in Southeast Asia. The purpose, to be sure, has been to impress upon the Communists that the United States is concerned about the fate of members of the Southeeast Asia Treaty Organization in future years.

So to say that a "declaration of war" should have been adopted is to ignore the fact that the United States would have been in an embarrassing position with respect to other countries. This might have resulted in incidents that would have brought the United States and Russia into a serious if not bellicose relationship.

America has stationed in Europe a considerable force to protect the members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. No "declaration of war" is required to resist attacks on those nations. Not only is it recoghized that a long congressional debate is impractical when a military crisis occurs, but it is wise to let potential enemies know that the United States can act instantly.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

It was Sunday morning. The sun got high early and ironed the wrinkles out of blue shadows in the French Quarter. The old clapboard buildings off Bourbon Street had Saturday night wrinkles under their eyes. The macadam glistened from an early shower. The saloons and strip joints had their shades down.

Little Joe was dead two days and he would not see New Orleans any more. There was a leaning house with a concave wooden porch, and he was lying inside, face up, a portrait in repose. If he had a regret he was beyond it. Someone said he was heading for new horns.

He could blow. Little Joe was as small and round as an olive, and he could plaster a trumpet against those thick Concord grape lips and flatten them as he squeezed his eyes for the note above high C.

Put him in with a drummer and a guitarist and he could hold the mouthpiece an inch from his lips, ruffle the valves, roll his eyes to the drummer and say: "What next?" Someone would say, "Gimmie a little piece of 'Sweet Sue,' Joe," and he would bow behind a busy bar and start to blow soft and draggy, a half beat behind the guitar, and he would look at the cracked ice and the booze and take Sue all the way to Mobile and back.

No one knows what Little Joe read, but it wasn't music. He had all the music in his heart and head and when the Canadian Club was coming fast from the customers, he could blow himself into a mist of diamonds on his chocolate forehead.

He never lost patience with the insolent white customers. Little Joe said: "Yessir, yessir," as though he wasn't listening, and he'd give them two stanzas of "When the Saints Go Marching in" and the cheap walls would pop paint when he made that horn cry.

When he showed up too drunk to play, he was fired. He had been fired from almost every bar in the Quarter. He'd go out into the bright blue and red neon world with his horn in an old peeling leather case. It was his talent, his living. His fun was women and those cigarettes with no writing on them.

He was always out of bed at 4 p.m. on the dot. Little Joe was surprised, sometimes, to find he had company. "Whatcha name, honey?" he would say, and those big hard-boiled egg eyes would bleed a little at the answer: "You remember. Lullu Belle from Baton Rouge." And Little Joe would say, "Sure. Sure. I'll make us some coffee."

The mortal enemy of the ladies man is marriage. Little Joe enjoyed the company of women of several shades of darkness. Those he didn't remember, remembered him. Then he met Theodophilous. She had a figure like a $400 sofa with pillows, and skin of shiny ebony. The planes of her cheek and jaw were pure art.

She said she came from Morgan City and she wasn't going back. Little Joe had a hospitable pad, a little unkempt and smelling of old joys. Theo said no. Whatever Little Joe couldn't have, he had to work for.. He campaigned like Lee at Gettysburg, but Theo repulsed every charge. That's when Little Joe married her.

A bad move. Any girl brought up working the fields has no right to a temper. After the honeymoon, the bartenders said that Little Joe blew the horn a little slower and sadder, he knew all he wanted to know about Theo, but she was just beginning to learn about him. "You look at another woman," she said twice a week. "I'll kill you."

That's why he was in repose now. Theo caught him. She got a kitchen knife and almost pinned him to a strange girl. I looked at Little Joe and thought: "What a waste of talent." He was in a gay powder blue casket and there were four nurses in white to carry fainting ladies onto the rockers on the porch. All of them saw the nurses and fainted.

The black funeral coach arrived with the crystal coach lights. An effeminate man in a long pink gown and train went in, took a look and fainted, but the nurses let him fall. Eight men carried the casket out into the bright sun. The back doors slammed shut.

Across the street, a lot of white men watched with respect. These were bartenders and club owners. They missed Little Joe already. A pickup band filed in loosely behind the coach. The cortege started down one street and up the next and out to the Negro cemetery. They played Dixieland all the way and hit some riffs never thought of before.

When they got in the cemetery gate, the sun was high and strong. The band gave Little Joe a slow chorus of his favorite number: "I'll be Glad When You're Dead, You Rascal You"...

Jack Anderson Says
Cambodian Invasion May Delay Return of GI's From Vietnam

WASHINGTON — Contrary to President Nixon's assurance that his drive into Cambodia would speed the U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam, there is now danger that the Cambodian crisis could slow the pull-out pace.

Both Defense Secretary Laird and Adm. Thomas Moorer have been ordered to Southeast Asia to size up the Combodian situation. The President is awaiting their report before he decides to go ahead with his withdrawal program.

He had planned to announce in May, on the anniversary of the Cambodian incursion, that the U.S. has ended its combat operations in South Vietnam, except for air and artillery support. He wanted to be able to say that American ground troops would only fight in self-defense.

Now he is waiting to find out whether a re-invasion of Cambodia may be necessary to save the country from a communist take-over. He has no intention of sending American troops back into Cambodia. But a South Vietnamese invasion force may be needed to defend the Lon Nol government from a growing communist build-up.

The President is counting upon South Vietnamese troops to protect the American withdrawal. To be sure, U. S. air, artillery and service units there are being left behind. But if the best South Vietnamese divisions are ordered into Cambodia, then more American combat troops would have to stay in South Vietnam.

Footnote: Laird and Moorer will also report to the President on communist build-up in Laos and the northern part of South Vietnam.

Kremlin Chill

The diplomatic chill in Moscow has left more frost on the American embassy than the blustery Russian winter. Not since the cold war have Soviet officials been so harsh in their attitude toward the U.S.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko used the excuse of anti-Soviet acts by Jewish extremists in the U.S. to deliver a blistering protest to American Ambassador Jacob Beam. The dour Russian warned ominously it would be hard to restrain angry Soviet citizens from retaliating with anti-American acts.

A State Department analysis has attributed the cold climate to an internal struggle over economic policies. While this is going on, according to the estimate, neither side wants to be too friendly to the Americans.

The technocrats of the Central Committee are worried over the kind of economic discontent that erupted into a workers revolt in Poland and want to divert more of their national effort from strengthening the military to improving living conditions. The State Department's Kremlin watchers are uncertain at this time whether party technocrats will triumph over the generals at the War Ministry.

The possibility has even been suggested that the Brezhnev-Kosygin leadership could be overthrown in a power struggle.

President Nixon's foreign policy advisor, Henry Kissinger, is more inclined to attribute the cold Soviet attitude to a deliberate anti-American policy. He suspects that the Kremlin is courting Western Europe and cold shouldering the U.S. in a conscious effort to drive a wedge between the U.S. and its European allies and to freeze the U.S. out of Europe.

No one, however, believes the Kremlin really wants to abandon the era of negotiations and return to the era of confrontation.

Draft Scandal

Draft boards often depend upon a mishmash of misinformation to determine whether young men should get into the armed forces. The Selective Service system has accumulated millions of raw files which are loaded with derogatory information — idle gossip, wild rumors and vicious lies — about potential inductees.

Senator Vance Hartke, D-Ind., was aroused by the discovery of a stacked file in his native Indiana. He immediately made a spot survey of draft boards in Indiana, Maryland, Virginia and Washington, D.C. He found complete confusion about what can go into a draftee's file.

"Absolutely anything," said a Maryland draft board workers. "Just be sure the registrant's name and number are on it."

In Evansville, a board employee told the Senator's office: "Just bring in anything you want and say you want it put in the file, and it will be."

Only at one Virginia board did Hartke find fair play. There, only the registrant could allow derogatory data to go into his folder.

Hartke's first polite queries to Selective Service Director Curtis Tarr were answered with the usual government double-talk. A few days ago, in a stern three-page letter to Tarr, Hartke demanded some straight answers. He accused Selective Service of denying "basic safeguards" to those it is calling into the armed forces.

Nixon's Headache

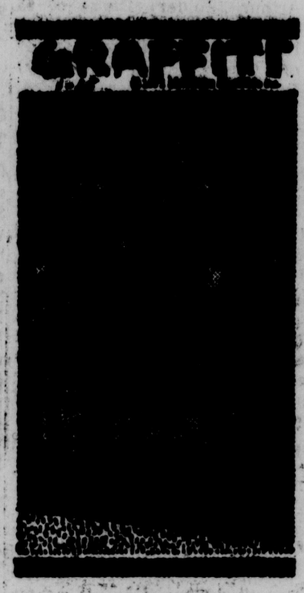

President Nixon's biggest headache is developing in Latin America.

A Marxist government has taken power in Chile. Bolivia, Brazil and Peru are led by military men who are intensely nationalistic, anti-U.S. and left-leaning.

A new breed of military officer, deeply opposed to U.S. economic domination, is coming to power throughout Latin America. These young officers, unlike the military leaders of the past, advocate social change.

Even the Catholic clergy in many Latin American countries have joined the clamor for change and reform.

In short, Latin America, which has followed the U.S. line almost unanimously in the past, is emerging as a major power bloc hostile to the U.S. Nixon may go down in history as the President who lost Latin America.

Government Role

Nixon's Reform Goals Set High

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Nixon spoke recently of his plans for what he calls "the most significant (governmental) reform that we have had, perhaps in a century."

Nixon has had government reform in his mind for quite a number of years, long before he entered the White House. He is known to believe that revising the structure of this government, within the framework of the Constitution is perhaps his role in history. And to take no chances, he wants that change to come within his first term of office, in case it is his only term.

Because of that Nixon dream, this reporter has spent considerable time at the White House in the past year checking to get just what it is that Nixon philosophically wants to achieve. My conclusions can now be reported to you with some confidence:

Nixon is neither a conservative nor a liberal. What's more, Nixon believes most Americans are like him — somewhat close to center (regardless of how they label themselves).

As one White House staffer puts it:

The President in his conversations with us continually restates the theme that what he is trying to do is to reform the structure of American government so that it can achieve the goals which have been fairly clearly defined in the last 25 years in this society but, singularly and outrageously somehow, not attained.

Says one Nixon advisor: If there was ever a paradox, it was in the 1960s. In that period we had the longest, strongest economic expansion in history, a period that ended up with the Gross National Product growing at a billion dollars a week. During that period the number of people dependent on welfare soared. New York City ended up with 1,050,000 people on welfare rolls.

Though the investment in education increased at unprecedented rates, the school systems of the large urban centers approached collapse as their failure to educate and their failure to impose order and their failure to earn the loyalty and confidence of their people became ever more evident and more severe.

Similiarly, even back at a time when labor shortages were everywhere, a kind of labor shortage where, for example, in a period of three to four years the wages of nonunion employes went up faster than the wages of union employes because of the demand for labor, the unemployment rates in central cities were ghastly. You had an incredible phenomenon — unemployment rates among black young men of 23, 24 and 25 per cent. How could these things be?

So in Nixon's mind, the problem is not ideological, but administrative.

Legislature Is Off to Good Start

By CHARLES DUMAS
Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The legislature is off to its earliest start in memory this year, and no one seems more surprised than the lawmakers themselves.

To the amazement of many onlookers, the legislature began its first working week Monday by passing a piece of major legislation — the 18-year-old voting amendment.

It followed the next day by giving swift approval to Gov. Rockefeller's plan for continuing unemployment insurance benefits during prolonged periods of high unemployment.

Two big ones in the first two days. Not bad, considering the relatively slothful beginning of previous legislatures.

For as long as anyone around here can remember, the legislature has chafed under criticism that it is agonizingly slow to buckle down to its work. The pattern had been that little or no business was transacted on the floor of either house for days or even weeks. Finally, around early February, the lawmakers would swing into gear, raising the tempo swiftly until they piled up mountainous logjams of legislation through which they blasted their way to adjournment.

The leaders virtually have given up hopes of avoiding the closing crush, conceding that it's probably just in the nature of legislatures to put off the toughest decisions until the end. But they have been trying ardently for a better beginning, to improve the general "image."

This year, Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges came up with a simple formula for fashioning a productive beginning, and Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea readily assented.

Brydges noted that the 1970 legislature had passed 16 proposed amendments to the State Constitution, all of which need a second endorsement by the 1971 legislature before they may be submitted to the voters. Brydes reasoned that, since these measures already were in final form and since they already had been passed once, it would be an apple-pie exercise to run them through again — at the outset of this session.

Among them was the age-18 voting measure, which Brydges himself was sponsoring. So he led off with that one. No problem. And the legislature got itself some big headlines in the newspapers.

By happenstance Rockefeller chipped in with the unemployment legislation, which was in the nature of emergency action. So the legislature had two scores, back to back.

Coming up soon will be the amendment proposed repeal of the Blaine ban on aid to parochial schools to be followed by the amendment of seeking to create a new State Department of Criminal Justice.

Following this routine, the leaders can keep the rank-and-file hustling on the floor, while they sort out fresher problems.

But some of the lawmakers clearly were discomforted by the unaccustomed spurt of activity at the outset of the session.

Salt Sprinkled on Roads Hurts Trees and Shrubs

Salt used to melt ice and snow on highways can cause widespread decline of roadside sugar maples throughout New England. Many towns and cities are trying to save prized roadside trees from this type of injury, accoring to Robert A. Bartlett president of the F.A. Bartlett Tree Expert Company. Erecting mechanical barriers and curbs to carry the melted salt away from trees, thus preventing it from seeping into soil around the three roots is often done.

Common salt, sodium chloride, and calcium are poisonous to trees in concentrated amounts. Slowly, year after year, roots die, then leaves exhibit a scorch-like symptoms and dieback takes over. When these above-ground symptoms are noted many salt-injured trees have gone too far to be saved.

Most noticeable injury to roadside trees occurs in low places along highways where salt is washed down from hilly stretches. Shallow rooted trees such as maples, dogwoods and beeches are harmed first.

Home owners too often do untold harm to trees and plantings near drives and walks by over use of salt. Telltale signs of browned leaves and retarded growth that characterizes salt injury may be mistaken for some other type of injury.

Ranch House Accents Planning and Balance

By JACK McELENEY

"The Cabinet" is a ranch home that has ideal separation of the living and bedroom areas, with an accent on open planning and good balance.

A definite dividing line puts the three-bedroom sleeping area in a separate zone, isolated from movement of the main living area. The bedrooms are all over FHA requirements and all have large sliding door closets.

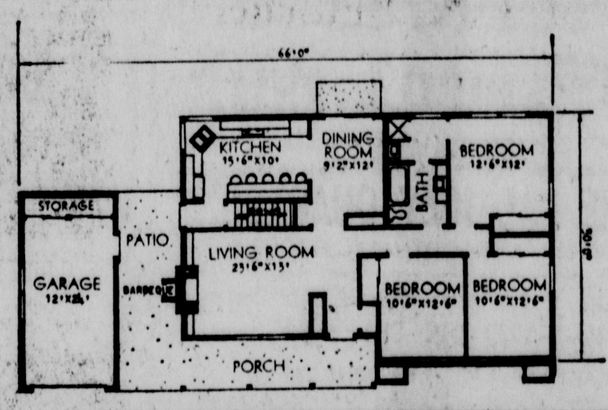

The main bathroom is divided to contain one-and-one-half bath facilities all in one location that not only cuts plumbing costs but is designed to do double duty as a private domain of the rear or master bedroom.

The kitchen is located to the left of the dining area and planned as a companion. A principal feature is a bar with stools to accommodate the family for breakfast and informal meals.

The covered porch, extending the length of the living room along with the patio, forms an ideal outdoor relaxation area.

"The Cabinet" contains 1,308 square feet of living space and complete building plans are available at moderate cost by using the accompanying coupon.

Files Keep All Tools in Working Order

By MR. FIX

A file is the tool you use to keep all your other tools in shape. As such, it could easily be the most important item in your tool box.

In practice, it probably is the most neglected.

Use files to keep saws and drill bits sharp, garden tools in shape. Remember that it is a maintenance tool for other tools.

Most tool boxes contain one or two files and almost invariably these are rusted, broken or caked with dirt.

Even then they may not be the right types for the jobs at hand. There are special files with different teeth designed for softer metals and there are special shapes for different jobs. Filing an auger bit, for example, requires a special sort of file. Tell your hardware dealer what you intend to do with the file and allow him to steer you the right way.

Files are available in all shapes, lengths, cuts and degrees of coarseness. Basic shapes are flat, round, half-round, triangular and square.

If the file is designated as a single cut it has single, parallel rows of teeth. A double cut file has rows of teeth crossing each other. The single cut is generally used for finer work.

A rasp has sharp, individual teeth in a checker board pattern. Use this file for extremely rough work. Another file used for rough work has curved, parallel cutting edges.

The file length is the size of the part of the file that has teeth. The pointed end, called a tang, is the part that is inserted in a handle.

Do not use a file without a handle. The tang can easily injure your hand.

You should have an assortment of handles as well as files. The handle should fit easily without being too loose. It should line up squarely with the file. Tap—but do not pound—the handle lightly on the workbench to make it fit.

When you use the file keep the pressure light and even. Cutting is done on the forward stroke, never on the back stroke. Move the file across the work the full length of the file for even wearing.

A file card is a brush with short wire bristles. Get one and keep it handy. Use it to clean the files.

Material to be filed should be held rigidly, preferably in a vise. If you are filing something to remove excess material start with a coarse file, end with a finer one.

Wood Winner

For living room flooring, hardwood has the lowest "true annual cost," reports the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Its study affixed the figure at $6.67 annually per 100 square feet for hardwood, $11.87 for tile, $16.09 for carpeting.

Chamber Breakfast Speaker

DR. ELMER S. McKAY

KINGSTON — Dr. Elmer S. McKay will address the January breakfast meeting of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce Tuesday, Jan. 19. The meeting will begin at 7:45 a.m. at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Dr. McKay, staff physician at IBM, is the current chairman of the Kingston Narcotics Guidance Council. The work of this council and the drug problem in general will be the subject of his address. A question and answer period will follow.

Dr. McKay received a B.S. from Grove City College, Grove City, Pa., in 1949, and an M.S. from the University of Michigan in 1950. He was a Fulbright Scholar to the University of Utrecht, The Netherlands, from 1952-53. He received his M.D. from the University of Maryland in 1959.

He is a member of the American Medical Association, the New York State Medical Association, the American Academy of General Practice, the Ulster County Medical Society and the Industrial Medical Association.

In addition to being chairman of the Kingston Narcotics Guidance Council, he is the vice-president of the Ulster County Chapter of the American Academy of General Practice, a member of the New York State Academy of General Practice, Legislation and Occupational Medicine, chairman of the Commission on Economics of the New York State Academy of General Practice, secretary-treasurer of the Kingston Zoological Society, and a member of the Kingston Kiwanis Club.

Chamber of Commerce Executive Vice-President Len Crane said that all meetings are open to all area residents. Those wishing to attend may call the Chamber by noon Monday, Jan. 18 for reservations.

Bus to Their Beer

KENT, Ohio (UPI)—The Kent Tavern Association Thursday began a free shuttle bus service between the downtown area and Kent State University dormitories.

Five Violations Charged to Girl

KINGSTON — A 17-year-old Hurley girl was cited after midnight today by police for five vehicle and traffic law violations after she was stopped at Broadway and Henry Street.

Teresa Kershaw of Box 158, Hurley, was booked for driving a car with switched plates, having no proof of insurance, operating an unregistered motor vehicle, violating a junior operator's license by driving after dark and failing to change her address.

Police also summoned Stewart Sharot, 23, of 153 Ten Broeck Avenue, for permitting an unlicensed operator to drive his car. Both were scheduled to appear in City Court.

GUILD MEMBERSHIP DRIVE — The Guild for Handicapped Children, comprised of parents and friends of Children's Rehabilitation Center, Webster Street, Kingston, is currently conducting a membership drive. Throughout the year, members participate in fund raising activities including the operation of The Guild Thrift Shop which has enabled the Guild to fulfill its pledge for the Center building which was made last year during the capital fund raising drive. The Guild, appreciative of the new building, is dedicated to furthering the work of the Center. Activities include social and educational as well as fund raising events. Shown here displaying their merchandise are (L-R) Mrs. Martin Oberkirch Jr., Mrs. Emmy Funard, Mrs. James Veatch, and Mrs. John Hofler. Anyone interested in joining the Guild should contact Mrs. Nelson Brodhead, membership chairman, or Mrs. Hofler, Guild chairman. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Housewives Advised: Stretch Food Budget, Use Onions

Look to onions to help stretch your food budget dollars in the coming months, according to the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets.

This year, New York State has harvested the largest crop of Yellow Globe onions in the nation — some 45 million pounds valued at well over $12 million.

Retail stores throughout the State are stocked with good supplies of top quality Yellow Globe onions, especially the larger sizes.

Onions have a good deal to recommend them. Low on the calorie list, they have nutritious value as a source of vitamin C and of such necessary minerals as calcium and potassium.

The versatility of this vegetable is impressive. You can boil, cream or fry onions, use them to add zest to soups, salads, stews, gravies, stuffings, sandwiches and as a perky seasoning. A glance through any cookbook will reveal few recipes which do not call for at least a hint of onions.

Because of the current abundant supply of onions, now is an economical time to experiment with new ways to use onions.

BENNETT CHORUS — The Reginald R. Bennett Elementary School presented its annual holiday program which included a play and musical selections. Featured on the program was the Bennett Chorus, shown above, directed by Mrs. Margaret Roosa; Bennett Band, under the direction of Miss Mary West; Bennett String Ensemble, conducted by Douglas Calderwood. A play, "Rebellion on Cloud Nine," written and directed by Miss Alleda Ellsworth and Mrs. Helen Turck, first grade teachers, was presented by first grade students. Costumes were made by mothers, Mrs. Robert Braun and Mrs. Bernard Winslow, and students, Susan Barringer, Laurie Dodge, Cathleen Donovan, John Every, Mark Jacobsen, George DeFina was in charge of scenery, assisted by fourth grade students, and Mrs. Joanne Wood was piano accompanist. Elizabeth Post Answers Etiquette Problems

By ELIZABETH L. POST
Of The Emily Post Institute

DEAR MRS. POST: My girl and I are both in our second year of college and have been going steady for one year. We plan to become engaged next month. We would like to know the customary procedures followed when two people become engaged.

Is the engagement official when I ask her, and do I give her the ring then? Do my parents know officially ahead of time that I am going to ask her or are they still playing a guessing game? Should I tell my parents a couple of days ahead that I am going to ask her? If I don't should I ask her parents? Then should I expect them to call my parents and tell them our wishes? Then, would we assume that we are officially engaged or would we have to wait until our parents got together (presumbably the next day)? I ask these questions because I want the engagement official on a special day.

WALTER

DEAR WALTER: Your engagemment is privately "official" as soon as you ask your girl to marry you, and she accepts. You may give her the ring then, if you have it in your pocket; you may give it to her at any later date, or you may even ask her help in selecting a ring.

Tell your parents the news right after you propose — not before. Go and talk to her parents as soon after she says "yes" as it can be arranged. Your parents then should call hers and invite them to your home, or suggest a meeting in any way they please.

After these formalities take place the engagement is truly "official" and the announcement in the paper, or a party, will make it public.

If Your Husband Loses His Job . . .

By DEBORAH OVEDOFF
Philadelphia Bulletin
Staff Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — There you are — four children, a mortgage on the house, car payments and seemingly endless bills.

And then, suddenly, your husband loses his job. In this day of growing unemployment and a continuing tightening of the dollar, the loss of a job is something more than family bread-winners are merely reading about.

Losing a job is one of the toughest blows a man has to take, in the opinion of psychiatrists, psychologists and job counselors.

Dr. Alan H. Cristol, associate professor of psychiatry at Temple University Hospital here calls the loss of a job "a terrible, castrating experience."

"It is very hard on a man's well-being, since in this society a great part of a man's identity derives from his job," he said. "With his job gone, man's entire equillibrium goes and suddenly the whole family is in a changed situation.

"For a short time anyone can cope with this, but persistent unemployment can lead to devastation in a family.

So what do you do?

The experts are equally agreed that the new role of a wife is one that calls for self-discipline, courage and patience.

Dr. Cristol said that the most significant thing a wife can do is to show her husband that he is still loved and respected for himself and not for the job he was doing.

Dr. Zygmut Piotrowski, director of spychological research at Edward N. Hay in Philadelphia, suggests that the family try and absolve the husband of a sense of guilt, and not make him feel that he is blamed for having lost his job.

"It is important for a wife to say nothing at all that could be interpreted as adverse criticism," said Dr. Piotrowski "there is no need to ask everyday if he has found a job. He'll tell her soon enough."

Both Dr. Cristol and Mrs. Robert Speck, assistant counseling supervisor, Pennsylvania State Employment Service, commented on the wish or need of the wife to go to work herself.

"To work herself and leave her husband at home could have a disastrous effect on a man and a woman," said Dr. Cristol. "Most people don't feel that their roles are interchangeable.

Mrs. Speak beleives that in a situation where their roles are reversed, the opinion of men and women depends on their entire outlook.

"For a man whose wife is well educated," she said, "one who is a teacher or nurse, say, the change in areas of responsiblility would depend on sound understanding in their marriage. In these circumstances it would be quite a normal change for the wife to go out and work.

"It would also depend on how long the family has lived in the United States. For first-generation Americans, it is hard to adisut to a womans working — her place is in the home.

"But successive generations are quite wedded to the idea that woman work in the world, and so would find it easier to accept the adjustment to a wife-breadwinner.

"There are also those young people who have both worked for several years after their marriage. Here again, it is not difficult to have a wife working in the sort of state of emergency which a job loss brings."

However, said Mrs. Speck, the very first thing a wife should do is take a long hard look at the family's budget and see where she can pare it.

"Read the newspaper ads with your husband, and say to him in an encouraging manner that you can live on less money," she said. "It might involve financial sacrifices, but a wife should be willing to make them.

Marriages have been known to end as a direct result of the strains of joblessness, says Dr. Mortimer R. Feinberg in an article in "Family Health."

"If the marriage was solid before the crisis," he says, "it will withstand the time of troubles. But often there is no way to be sure until the period of testing arrives and then it is safest to take nothing for granted.

"Life cannot go on normally when a man loses his job. As soon as the first shock wears off, he must get hold of himself and not let go.

"He may need subtle flattery, quiet amusement, or perhaps simply sleep. The measure of his wife's sensitivity will consist precisely of the skill with which she chooses and provides what he does need.

"While all this seems a good deal for the wife to do, she can remind herself ten times a day that troubles are only temporary.

"Then she must remember what he must go through all day, keeping up a good front at all times. The only exception is in the home, in the safety and security of his marriage."

Dr. Feinberg said that as part of her daily role a wife might go to the extent of editing her conversation, weeding out mention or problems that can wait for a solution — or which cannot possibly be solved in the present circumstances.

Once the bad time is over and the man is no longer jobless, Dr. Feinberg writes, a couple will remember most vividly how they behaved with each other.

If the situation has been handled with love and understanding, then their confidence in themselves, as well as their respect and dependence on each other, will have deepened.

Cardinal Visits Hospital Patients

Dorothy A. Narel, woman's page editor of The Daily Freeman, is a patient at Benedictine Hospital. On Wednesday she was visited by Terence Cardinal Cooke who was in Kingston for a meeting with priests from upstate counties of the Archdiocese of New York.

The Cardinal, accompanied by Sister Mary Charles, also visited the Rt. Rev. Joseph D. Ostermann and Mary Margaret McBride, who are also patients at Benedictine Hospital, and also spent some time at the Senior Citizens residence of the hospital.

Former Kingston Resident To Give One-Man Art Show

Gus Wiedemann and Barry Hopkins, art teachers at Catskill Junior High School, are currently participating in a program at the school, developed to acquaint students and the public with various types of art. Wiedemann is the son of Mr. and Mrs. August Wiedemann of 28 Dietz Court in Kingston. He received his BS degree from State University College at New Paltz.

The art teachers have set up several one-man shows to run for three weeks each throughout the year. Wiedemann's works will be displayed January 22 in the library and parents are invited to view the exhibit anytime during school hours.

Wiedemann has stated that he has always been strongly influenced by the bizarre and the fantastic. A painting or drawing by Ensor, Bosch, Munch or Escher weighs more with him than tons of flowers and vases ever could. His own work is drawn largely from surrealism, German expressionism, Pop Art, and even underground comic art. A good portion of his ideas and subjects material has been derived from that "wealth of insanity which has come to be known as twentieth century."

Monroe Paces UCAL; Pine Bush at Onteora

By IRA FUSFELD

KINGSTON

Ron Monroe, one half of Highland High School's powerful brother act, continues to lead the Ulster County Athletic League in scoring but other hot shooters will have their chance to gain on him since the Big Blue is not listed on tonight's schedule.

Pine Bush goes to undefeated Onteora in one of this evening's UCAL tilts. The chasers in the league race, Marlboro and Rondout Valley are on the road with the Dukes at New Paltz and the Ganders at Wallkill.

In DCSL contests, Saugerties tries to stay above the clouds at Roosevelt in a Central section meeting, while in the Bi-Valley loop, Red Hook is at Oakwood and Rhinebeck is at Cardinal Farley.

Monroe, according to unofficial figures, has poured in 120 points in Highland's five games for a 24.0 average. His top outputs are 30 against Wallkill and 28 versus Onteora.

Ron, whose brother Perry is a basketball teammate as well as scoring champion in the UCAL football league, has a wide margin over Marlboro's Rich Gerentine, who sits in second place.

Gerentine has collected 78 points in four games for a 19.5 norm and also has a 30 point game to his credit. The opposition in that one was Highland.

Bill McAfee of last place Wallkill is third with 61 points in just three games for a 20.3 average. Behind him in the top ten is Ken Papini of Pine Bush, Bill Joyner of Rondout, Brad Hart of New Paltz, Ed Grainger of New Paltz, Ronnie Hall of Rondout, Tom Novak of Pine Bush, and Dan Smith of Onteora.

Joe Bush of Onteora has the second highest average in the league, 22.0, but it has come in only two games.

The Indians are frontrunners in UCAL play with a 3-0 record. Pine Bush shouldn't do much to spoil that distinction when the teams battle in Boiceville.

Though Onteora has just Smith in the top 10, the Indians have four others who score in double figures and it's that balance which has put them in the lead. Pine Bush doesn't appear to be going anywhere.

The New Paltz-Marlboro encounter figures to be the most interesting one of the evening. The Dukes are one-half game behind Onteora and one full game ahead of the Huguenots.

Depth plays an important part in Marlboro's strength. Gerentine is the headliner but Bob Wells is underrated as is George Salinovich and Jerry Stokes and John Simmons are strong rebounders.

New Paltz is still in the race because Hart and Grainger have been scoring. Rick Pesavento has been playmaking, and Jay Ackert with John Palonis and Harold Anderson have been rebounding.

Rondout won't have much trouble in Wallkill. McAfee is the only player of consequence for the home team while the defending champs, though not as strong as last year, have enough.

Coach Jerry Hawkins will be hoping that his Saugerties team can come up with another big effort but anything short of a shutout will be anti-climatic after the Sawyers' big upset of Poughkeepsie on Tuesday.

Jerry West Added The Right Figures

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eleven into six will go. . . if you have Jerry West doing the arithmetic.

West scored 11 points in the last six minutes to help Los Angeles wipe out a Cincinnati lead and beat the Royals 126-120 in the National Basketball Association Thursday night.

The Lakers held a 62-55 lead at the half, but trailed by as much as five points during the fourth period.

The Royals led 101-99 when the hot-handed West tied it with the first of his big field goals at the six-minute mark. Then the Lakers' veteran guard added nine more to help his club pull away in the contest played on a neutral floor in Toronto, Can.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Chicago beat Philadelphia 108-103, Buffalo trimmed Portland 119-113; Detroit topped Cleveland 108-106; Phoenix bombed New York 107-88 and Seattle turned back Baltimore, 114-110.

In the American Basketball Association, it was Utah, 116, Memphis 102; Carolina 133, Floridians 130 and Pittsburgh 122, Kentucky 111.

West, a perennial NBA all-star, finished with a game-high 33 points while Wilt Chamberlain helped out matters with 30.

Johnny Green, the 37-year-old wonder who sat out most of the second and fourth quarters, led the Royals with 27 points.

Bob Love spearheaded a fourth-quarter surge for Chicago, scoring nine of his 27 points, as the Bulls pulled away from Philadelphia. Bailey Howell led the 76ers with 22 points.

Bob Kauffman scored 30 points to lead Buffalo over Portland. The Braves trailed 27-11 after seven minutes but rallied for a 31-31 first quarter tie, then pulled into a 59-54 halftime lead behind Kauffman's scoring.

Jimmy Walker's 15-foot jumper with four seconds left enabled Detroit to beat Cleveland, which losts its 45th game in 51.

Phoenix slapped a defensive lid on New York, holding the Knicks to 14 third quarter points, and rolled behind Dick Van Arsdale's 25 points. Paul Silas helped to knock out the Knickerbockers with 20 rebounds.

Seattle, ahead by 21 points early in the fourth period, withstood a late Baltimore surge that just fell short. The SuperSonics led 96-75 before the Bullets cut the deficit to 110-108 on a basket by Jack Marin.

Player-coach Lenny Wilkens hit a field goal for Seattle and a jumper by Baltimore's Earl Monroe made it 112-110 with 27 seconds left. Wilkens was fouled with four seconds to play and he converted both shots to wrap up the verdict.

Wilkens topped the Sonics with 34 points and Monroe was high for the Bullets with 22.

State Cross Country Races at Rosendale

About 150 cross-country ski racers and jumpers from all parts of the East will converge on Rosendale this weekend to compete in the New York State Junior Nordic Championships and the New York State Senior Cross-Country ski race.

Sylvia Ricci, president of the Rosendale Nordics, announced that most of the participation will be in the Torger Tokle League contests for age groups under 14. The Torger Tokle League, formed two years ago to stimulate interest in Nordic skiing for the real young, was named after America's greatest ski jumper who lost his life in World War II.

In the Senior Cross-Country race, the New York State Championship title will be up for grabs. The 15 kilometer race for college and senior competitors will begin 1:30 Sunday afternoon at Williams Lake Hotel. Dartmouth, Cornell and Williams Colleges have entered strong teams, but the eyes will be on Rosendale's Class A runner, Wiekko Salmela and Raimo Ahti, Class A competitor from Fitchburgh, Mass., one of whom is expected to take the coveted Class A title. Ahti is a former national champion at 30 kilometers and won the Rosendale race five years ago. Salmela has been gaining in stature with each race this winter and easily won the Rosendale Mass Start race last Sunday.

The jumping events will take place Saturday afternoon beginning at 1:30 on the junior jumping hills in Binnewater. Last year, Mat Bimonte and Ed Schissler of Lake Placid dueled to a close finish on the small jumping hill with Bimonte coming out the winner with a hill record of 99 feet. This year both these young men are on the National A team and are competing this week in the National Championships at Durango, Colorado.

Salisbury, Connecticut will have the largest visiting team with 33 entered in the junior contests. Lake Placid is sending 16 and the local Rosendale Nordics will enter about 40. Barry Strobel of Rosendale, Rondout Valley track star Aaron Randall, Bob Swehla of Tillson and Ed Hunlock of High Falls are the local juniors expected to give the north country boys the greatest competition.

Beacon Ski Club is sending 10 and Hanover, New Hampshire High School and Bennington, Vermont High School each will enter 6. The Putney, Vermont Ski Club, home of John Caldwell the National Cross Country Ski Coach, will send 6 and the Queensbury Ski Club from Glens Falls will enter 5.

Extend Deadline For KBA Tourney

KINGSTON

The Kingston Bowling Association made a not too unexpected announcement today. The Jan. 15 deadline for entries for the annual association championships has been extended nine days to Sunday midnight, Jan. 24.

Tournament Manager Carlo Perry said that with less than 100 teams entered to date, it was the consensus of KBA officials that most bowlers needed the extra week to recoup from the holidays to enter the tournament with its across-the-board $20 entry fee this year.

The tournament opens on Feb. 6 with the five-man event that weekend at Ferraro's Bowlerama. The following weekend, Feb. 13-14, Sangi's Bowlero will host the singles and doubles.

"We are still hopeful of attracting enough teams to guarantee a $1,000 prize for first place in team handicap," said Perry, "but we have a lot of work ahead of us."

Ice Fishing Contest

The annual Ice Fishing Contest sponsored by Hidden Valley Recreation Center is now in progress at Hidden Valley Lake, Whiteport Road, and continues through Jan. 31.

A total of $200 in cash prizes will be awarded in various categories. There is an entry fee for the contest. Also available are ice skating, snowmobile trails and a heated clubhouse.

Packers Sign Dan Devine

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Dan Devine wasn't here Thursday to hear perhaps the most important announcement of his life, but even in abstentia he made one thing perfectly clear.

At 46—the same age Vince Lombardi was when he took charge of the Green Bay Packers 12 years ago—Devine isn't too old to tackle a new challenge.

One of the most successful college football coaches in the nation, Devine is willing to give up his coaching job and athletic directorship at the University of Missouri — where tenure gave him total security—to try to fill the National Football League footsteps of the legendary Lombardi.

Devine was given a five-year contract at undisclosed terms as head coach and general manager of the Packers. His mission is clear: to restore the pioneer NFL club to somewhere near the heights it ascended in the 1960s under Lombardi.

The mantle was passed to Devine, the seventh head coach in Packer history, after three disappointing seasons under Phil Bengtson.

Bengtson was handpicked by Lombardi as his successor in 1968, when the Packers were riding a crest of three consecutive NFL and two straight Super Bowl titles. But his three-year record was only 20-21-1, including 6-8 in 1970. He quit under fire Dec. 22.

Dominic Olejniczak, Packer president, announced the signing of Devine at a hastily called news conference Thursday.

George Allen was believed to have been Green Bay's first choice when he was fired by the Los Angles Rams. But then Allen was hired by the Washington Redskins, and the Packers turned to the college ranks.

Devine, who was in Kansas City Thursday, telephoned Pat Peppler, Green Bay player personnel director, later in the day to discuss the NFL draft which starts Jan. 28.

Devine, a native of Augusta, Wis., said he would be "less than honest if I didn't say that reaching this decision to leave the University of Missouri was the most trying experience of my life."

Devine played quarterback at the University of Minnesota-Duluth.

He entered coaching in 1948 at East Jordan, Minn., High School, where he had two undefeated teams in two seasons.

After five years at Michigan State and two at Arizona State, he went to Missouri to succeed Frank Broyles as head coach.

In the next 13 years, second longest coaching reign in Missouri history, he compiled a record of 93 victories, 37 losses and seven ties. His teams played in six bowl games, winning four.

DAN DEVINE, the new Green Bay Packers coach, laughs as he is introduced before a speaking engagement in Kansas City Thursday. Devine, University of Missouri coach since 1958, accepted position with Green Bay. He signed a five-year contract. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Three-Way Crosby Tie

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Tom Shaw compared himself to Arnold Palmer as he discussed his winless 1970 season on the professional golf tour.

"I kept thinking I'd win a tournament. But, just like Arnold, I ran out of tournaments," said the 28-year-old blond from Oregon after shooting a four-under-par 68 Thursday to share the first round lead with Bobby Nichols and Terry Dill in the $135,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Championship.

Palmer, the game's all-time leading money winner, also went without a tournament victory in 1970. But with $128,000 in prize money, the year was no disaster.

Shaw won the Doral Open and Avco Classic in 1969 and totaled $83,332 in winnings. But a reversal in his fairway fortunes last year made him one of the tour's second class citizens — a non exempt player. He was 68th on the money list, with $34,004 in 1970.

"There was no big change in my game. My scores were just too high," he said Thursday after his sub-par round at the 6,464-yard Cypress Point course.

Nichols, who made his 1970 cash with a $50,000 first-place check in the Dow Jones Open, also played his opening round at Cypress, the shortest of the three courses used in the Crosby. Dill's 68 was at the four-year old Spyglass Hill course and was the best round ever at the 6,972-yard course in Crosby competition.

Shaw, Nichols and Dill were one stroke ahead of veteran Howie Johnson. At 70 were Gene Littler, Rik Massengale, Lefty Gene Ferrell and Argentina's Roberto de Vicenzo.

Jack Nicklaus, who passed up last week's season opening tournament in Los Angeles, started 1971 with a 72 at Cypress.

The Ohioan, whose five 1970 titles included the British Open, was bunched with Palmer, Masters champion Billy Casper and several others at even par.

Shaw and Nichols had early tee times Thursday and played most of their rounds when the weather was warm and calm on the ocean side courses. Blustery winds moved in later in the day.

Shaw made two big birdie putts, from 25 and 30 feet. Nichols outdid him, however, with putts of 40 and 45 feet for two of his six birds.

"A putter can make a racehorse out of a mule," said Nichols, whose chances of holding the lead alone were killed when he put a three-iron shot into the Pacific on no. 17 and took a double bogey six.

Dill played most of his round in the afternoon but Spyglass is the least windy of the three Crosby courses. The Texan, who has never won a tournament in nine years on the tour, ignored the wind on the 14th hole by holing out with a nine-iron from 112 yards for an eagle three.

Shaw, trying hard not to run out of tournaments this year, also was a first round leader last week at Los Angeles. He finished the tourney with a 282, and by going 72 holes he spared himself the agony of going out with the "rabbits" this Monday to qualify for a spot in the Crosby.

Sawyers Topple Plains on Mats

PINE PLAINS

Saugerties High School dominated the last five events to defeat Pine Plains, 26-23, in a DCSL wrestling match here Wednesday.

The Sawyers had dropped five of the first six contests before a draw in the 145 lb. division and then four wins gave them their first match victory of the year against three losses.

Top Saugerties performances were turned in by Ken Hallion, who walloped his 167 lb. opponent Paul Baden, 18-0, and heavyweight Leon Powell, victorious with a pin of George Desser at 3:54.

Saugerties now has a league record of 1-2. The Sawyers' next meet is at Beacon on Wednesday.

The summaries:

Saugerties 26 — Pine Plains 23

98 lb.—Jim Redder (S) dec. John George (P), 6-2.

105 lb.—Pete Mosher (P) dec. Craig Miller (S), 6-4.

MUSCLING UP — John David Hilton, who swings a 15-pound sledge hammer at night when there's no place to swing a baseball bat, was out practicing baseball when he turned up as the No. 1 pick in the 6th annual winter baseball free agent draft. The San Diego Padres who drafted him consider him "the top talent in the draft. Hilton is 6-1, weighs 190 pounds and plays the infield. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Former Roosevelt High Star

Rinaldi — Top Italian Pick

By MARTY RABOLVSKY

NEW YORK—(NEA)—It may come as a surprise to the people of Jersey City, N. J. and Poughkeepsie, N. Y., but there are people over in Italy who have circled in red their cities on a map of the eastern United States.

It is not that Jersey City and Poughkeepsie are connoisseur cities of pizza and mozzarella direct from Naples. It is just that the basketball player the Italy Pro League covets most lives in Poughkeepsie and goes to school in Jersey City.

Rich Rinaldi of St. Peter's College, the NBA and ABA may note, already is the No. 1 draft choice in the Italian League.

Rinaldi, besides being one of the top five scorers in the country, is of Italian-American descent. He has been spinning spaghetti for as long as he has been spinning jump shots off his fingertips and that, Italian recruiters have said, is a prerequisite if one is to play—and eat—with a team as renowned as Ignis, which has won the European Cup Tournament the last two seasons.

(Ed. Note—Rinaldi is a graduate of Roosevelt High in Hyde Park and followed in the wake of two other great players—Wes Bialosuknia and Greg Kohls, currently at Syracuse. He averaged 26.7 points in his senior year.)

Few Italo-Americans

"For some reason, and I can't explain it, there are very few Italian-American basketball stars," said Dick Kaner, a New York-based agent who is an intermediary between American players and the Italian leagues. "You look up and down the NBA and ABA lineups and you won't find too many Italian boys."

"So, when one does come along like Rinaldi, the people over in Italy can't get over here fast enough to talk to him. Their game is less sophisticated and emphasizes muscle rather than moves. They want Americans over there to teach them the intricacies of the give-and-go, fast break and pressing defense. To get one who is an Italian, too, well that would be the ultimate."

Real Blandishments

To lure American players, the Italian leagues do considerably better in fringe benefits than either of the two American leagues.

A rookie in Italy will receive a salary of $27,500, which is tax free. He will receive a car, a rent-free apartment, a clothes allowance and all the ziti he can eat (all meals are paid for by the team). Medical and dental bills are also picked up by the team and, if a player is married, his family is included in the deal.

"Last year," said Kaner, "an American named Elnardo Webster played over there and his wife had a baby there. She wasn't feeling too well afterward and had to stay in the hospital for a while. So, his team brought her mother over from the States and put her up for a month, paying for everything."

12-Team League

The 12 teams in the Italian League are allowed to import one American (or any other foreign player, for that matter) for regular-season play, which consists of one game a week, every Sunday night. For the European Cup competition they are allowed to import two.

But, as far as Rinaldi is concerned, Italian basketball is as unfamiliar to him as the basketball played, say, in the Southwest Conference.

"I'm flattered that the people in Italy think so highly of me," he said, "but I'm not too sure I want to play there yet. Like all American players, I want to play in the NBA or ABA where the prestige is. But I'm not counting out the possibility of putting in a year over in Italy, then coming back and trying one of the pro leagues here, like Terry Driscoll did.

"I've never been to Europe and it sounds like a great way to see the country. The fringes sound great and who couldn't use some tax-free dollars? No, I don't have any relatives over there that I know of, but you know how it is.

"Score some points and everybody's your second cousin."

McCafferty: A New Image

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Don McCafferty, as unobtrusive as a 6-foot-5 man can be, has led the Baltimore Colts into the Super Bowl in his first season as a head football coach.

On the practice field, a casual observer hardly knows McCafferty is around. In postgame interviews, the coach barely speaks above a whisper.

McCafferty's personality contrasts sharply with that of Don Shula, the man he replaced as field boss of the Colts.

"Mac doesn't have to yell," one Baltimore player observed. "When someone does something wrong, he can get his point across with a stare. It's just as effective."

McCafferty, after serving 10 years as an assistant coach at Kent State University and 11 more under Weeb Ewbank and Shula with the Colts, was still a virtual unknown.

When he took over as head coach, McCafferty had this observation about himself:

"Everybody says I never have anything to say. I guess that's because nobody ever asks me anything."

But as Baltimore advanced to Sunday's Super Bowl showdown with the Dallas Cowboys after posting an 11-2-1 regular season record, plus two playoff victories, McCafferty has been deluged with questions.

McCafferty took over a team which owner Carroll Rosenbloom thought should have won a league title last season instead of finishing second at 8-5-1. Compounding his takeover problem was the players' strike.

"Problems are a part of any job," McCafferty said. "You just solve them the best way you can—make decisions and learn by your mistakes."

As far as execution is concerned, McCafferty sees no difference in being an assistant coach or head coach.

"After all these years, I've seen everything," he observed. "The only difference is, I now have the final say."

After 21 years in the press box area, telephoning plays and observations to the sidelines, McCafferty was thrilled by his new spot on the field.

"I like it down there," he said. "I like being involved. I can talk to anybody I want without going through someone else."

Quarterback Johnny Unitas says McCafferty's "handling of personnel is the big thing in his favor. He's honest and fair with everybody, moves the players around to their best advantage and gets the best out of them. And, of course, he knows the game."

UCCC at Point

By IRA FUSFELD

KINGSTON

Fresh from its most one sided victory of the season, Ulster County Community College invades West Point Saturday to tangle with the always tough Army Plebes.

The game will start at 6:30 p.m. in Army's 5,000 seat Field House. Dartmouth meets the Cadets in the nightcap.

UCCC has been struggling along in search of consistency and had dropped two straight before making chop meat out of the New Paltz freshmen. But don't expect the Senators to score 117 points as they did Wednesday for the Plebes concentrate on the same type of methodical style that has made the Army varsity number one defensive team in the nation.

Bob Nelson will probably be the man whom Coach Mike Perry will have to stop for U-Tri-C to better its 9-6 record. A 6'4" forward from San Diego, Calif., Nelson scored 26 points in the Plebes' opener against St. Peter's and has been tough all along.

Mark Burrington, another 6'4" California (Mancho Cordova) is another good one putting points in at a clip of some 14 a game. A third force with which to be reckoned is Dave Dlugolenski, 6'4" from Cromwell, Conn.

The Plebes, who beat Ulster 65-63 last year, have ample height in 6'7" Ned Baumgarner of Richwood, Ohio, and 6'6" Ernie McDuffie of Atlantic City, N.J.

Ulster finally put it all together against New Paltz. Glenn Berry scored at will, Cliff Weeks was sharp, and Roger Govantes, the on and off backcourt man, was definitely on with 35 points.

The big win injected a healthy boost into the Senators offensive statistics. Berry's scoring average jumped to 19.3, and was matched by comparable surges by Weeks (14.8) and Govantes (11.1). Gary McDonald is a fourth Senator in double figures (10.7).

George Civile, who missed Wednesday's game with a bad cold, is expected to return for Ulster. The game marks the first of a three contest road trip which will pit the Senators against Marist's frosh on Wednesday and Post Junior College next Saturday.

Next UCCC home date is Jan. 28 with Orange Community providing the opposition in a Mid-Hudson Conference affair.

KSC Signs Greek Star

MORGAN HILL

The Kingston Sport Club Kickers have come up with their own Spiro on the eve of the annual Schaefer Indoor Soccer Classic which opens Saturday at the Westchester Civic Center at White Plains.

But the last name doesn't pronounce as easily as Agnew's. It's a tongue twister—Neofetesios. Spiro, who is presently employed at Jo-Al's Restaurant in Kingston, is a brand new import from Greece.

Neofetesios was born in the small Greek village of Mesologi in 1944 and started playing soccer for his home town team at an early age. His skills were soon recognized by professional scouts and, until his departure for the United States last August, he played with the Trinkaodos, one of the top major league teams in Greece.

Although not in top playing condition, Neofetesios impressed Coach Oskar Benzenhofer and KSC officials in the workout last Sunday at the Kate Walton field house. He displayed excellent ball control and fine passing. "He should definitely be a great reinforcement to the team," said Coach Benzenhofer.

The Sport Club also announced the addition of two other players, both from the famed Hartwick College varsity. They are Fillipe Dulante and Terry Fisher. Dulante plays at center half and Fisher is a forward.

Other players on the Kickers' official 10-man roster for the Schaefer Classic include Timo Liekoski of Hartwick; goalie Joel Tomson, Eugene (Gino) Ventriglio, Winnie Soddemann,

SPIRO NEOFETESIOS

Jerry Lee Hing and Fernando Nasmyth of UCCC; Karol Von Borkolu and Olaf Weber.

The club has announced the suspension by the German-American Football Association of veteran Jimmy Reinhardt for two games. The GAFA board set Reinhardt down because of three warnings to him by league referees within a month.

A total of 17 games will be played Saturday night at the White Plains Center, with Kingston meeting the Yonkers Sports Club at approximately 7:15 p.m.

A game will last 15 minutes, with 7½-minute halves and no time outs. There will be six players on each side.

Onteora Girls Trip Rondout

BOICEVILL

Onteora girls varsity basketball team grabbed an early lead and went on to trounce Coleman High of Kingston, 36-19. The OCS girls led 19-7 at the half.

Nancy DiNapoli led OCS with 11 points. Mary-Ann Viskocil had 9 and Sue Graham hit 8.

Onteora (36) — Baker 4, Reffelt, Heidenstrom 2, Heppner, Malek, Viskocil 9, Herdman, Graham 8, Frankel, Mellert 2, DiNapoli 11.

All-America For Asare

By IRA FUSFELD

NEW PALTZ

Multi-talented Elliott Pobbi-Asare of New Paltz State was recently chosen honorable mention on the 1970 National Soccer Coaches Association All-American team.

The Galloping Ghanian paced the Hawks in scoring with 18 goals as New Paltz had the most successful season in its history with a 14-5-1 record and a fourth place finish in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tournament.

Pobbi-Asare, a former booter for the Kingston Sport Club, became the fifth New Paltz player to be named by the Coaches Association, whose team is the only one named in the country.

Previous Hawk coaches were Joe Faccioli, Gino Ventriglia, Bob Spadonia and Bob Hippy. Ventriglia was a three time pick and Faccioli was selected twice.

Hippy, the Indonesia star who captained the Hawks this season playing both forward and fullback, missed by one vote from joining Pobbi-Asare on the honored list.

Many of the Hawks' opponents were placed on the squad, including Bill Nuttal, star goalie of Davis and Elkins, Va., the team that shutout New Paltz in the NAIA semis and went on to win the title.

Randy Smith of Buffalo State was a first team selection, while Gene Massey of Buffalo, Mill Smythe of Davis and Elkins, and George Grygas of Ottawa, Kansas, were on the second team.

A surprise was the placement of Hartwick College great Alex Papadarkis on the second 11.

Registration Now For Soap Box Derby

KINGSTON

Registration for the 1971 Soap Box Derby in Kingston will take place the next three Saturdays—Jan. 16, Jan. 23 and Jan. 30—from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. at Ray Chevrolet on Broadway. Kingston Jaycees will have registration forms and official rule books for boys 11-15 who are interested and eligible to compete.

A boy's parent or guardian must also be present to sign the registration forms. The derby is scheduled July 18.

Kingston Derby Director Larry Hendershot of the Jaycees noted that this year's race will be the third annual coasting classic to be held locally.

The Kingston winner, who qualifies for Chevrolet's international finals in Akron, Ohio, Aug. 14, will receive a handsome trophy and a $500 U.S. Savings Bond from Chevrolet. At Akron, he will compete for a share of $30,000 in college scholarships.

The Soap Box Derby international finals are one of the world's greatest sports spectacles for youngsters. The races culminate months—and even years—of planning and preparing for the big day. And, then, in a matter of a few seconds, it's all over.

The Akron event is given national television coverage and the films are shown around the world

It is a truly "international championship" for any boy who wins it.

State Tops Hartwick

ONEONTA

Albany State held off a late rally to defeat Hartwick College, 70-66, in basketball action here Wednesday.

Jack Jordan hit a free throw and Steve Sheehan added two more in the last 21 seconds to insure Albany of its sixth win against four losses.

Hartwick had been ranked as the number two College Division team in the State. The defeat dropped its record to 9-3.

Albany led 37-29 at the half and was still in front, 67-55, with over six minutes remaining but a Hartwick surge brought them to within two, 67-65, with 2:34 on the clock.

Neither side could score in the next two minutes but a free throw by Jim Traynham made it 67-66 before Jordan and Sheehan hit their deciding charity tosses.

Jim Masterton paced Albany with 18 points. Al Reid had 16 and John Quattrocchi added ten. Willie Rackley's 21 topped Hartwick.

Former Kingston High School star, Werner Kolln, scored seven points for Albany on two field goals and three free throws.

The box score:

ALBANY (70)	FG	FP	T	HARTWICK (66)	FG	FP	T
Jordan	2	4	8	Hoffer	4	0	8
Quattrocchi	5	0	10	Quinones	6	3	15

Basketball Officials To Honor Bing Van Etten

POUGHKEEPSIE

The Central Hudson Valley Board of Approved Basketball Officials has voted unanimously to honor the late Frank (Bing) Van Etten of Kingston in conjunction with the Basketball Hall of Fame at Springfield, Mass.

According to Barney McGovern, Secretary-treasurer of the CHVBAP, the board has qualified for a Founders Plaque in the Hall of Fame.

The Springfield Hall of Fame will then send a certificate to the Central Hudson chapter on which the name of Van Etten will be embossed.

"There will be no ceremony at the Hall of Fame," said McGovern, 'but in all probability our certificate will be presented to the Van Etten family at some later date. We are very happy to be able to honor Bing Van Etten's memory in this manner."

Van Etten was one of the Kingston area's all time great athletes as a baseball and basketball player and was a member of the original Spinny Five of Port Ewen, one of the first outstanding independent teams in the area.

He was also a topnotch official for many years and served as president and was active in the affairs of the Central Hudson board.

Van Etten was identified with the Babe Rtuh League since its inception, having served as president and one of its moving forces.

Shelightner — 701

KINGSTON

Big Bob Shelightner slammed his second 700 set of the season, a 701 off games of 211, 235 and 255 in the International League. It was the fourteenth 700 series of the 1970-71 season in the Kingston area. Shelightner's first 700 was a 735, fourth highest.

Runnerup in the International was Joe Wilson with 653 off highs of 238, 223. George Magley decked 244-627, Chris Gallo 208, 218-613; Lonny McAndrew 222, 223-613; John Finch, 209-590.

Team highs were rolled by Sawkill Trailer Park with 1029 and Berardi's Fuel and Gas, 2766.

Glaser Holds Lead

George Glaser, who rolled a fantastic career-first 781, continues to lead the Top Ten. He rolled the phenomenal first-timer with games of 277, 257 and 247. American Bowling Congress officials have not yet determined if that is an all-time national record.

Runnerup is Herb Petersen with 758 and Dick Howard ranks third with 736.

Tom Carlino's second 300 is top solo, of course. Shelightner has a 288 and Carl Nordstrom, 287.

Fire Damages Car in City

KINGSTON

Fire of undetermined origin heavily damaged a 1970 car on Liberty Street Thursday night.

Fire units responded to a call at 9:38 p. m. in charge of Deputy Chief Robert Maines, and on arrival at the scene they found the entire interior of the vehicle owned by Harold Higgins of Lisbon involved in flames.

A booster line from Engine 2 was used to quell the blaze. The fire occurred near the home of Margaret Higgins of 40 Liberty Street, who reportedly had been driving the car.

Dear Abby

Secretary Upsets Wife

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My very efficient secretary, who had been with me for 12 years, retired.

After several weeks of interviews, our daughter sent a 26-year-old former college friend of hers to apply for the position. Tho very plain, she apeared to be personable, competent and well-groomed, so I hired her. In the past months she has shown promise of developing into a top-notch secretary. Meanwhile my wife is furious with my daughter for sending this girl over and she's angry with me for hiring her. The reason, the girl is well endowed and she goes braless.

Good secretaries are at a premium, and I mean to keep this one, short of breaking up my home. Her going braless doesn't bother me, and besides, I feel it is her business and nobody else's. By the way, our own daughter (who is equally well endowed) goes braless, too, but this doesn't bother my wife. Now, what do you think, Abby?

NO HANKY PANKY IN PORTLAND

DEAR NO HANKY: Tell your wife to run the house and to let you run your office. Better a braless secretary than one who's brainless.

DEAR ABBY: My boy friend grew a beard and it looks crummy. The hair on his head is brown, and his beard grew in red! Also, it's very uneven and it looks like moths got into it in spots. He knows it looks funny, and he knows I don't like it, but he won't shave it off because to him it's a symbol of his independence, and he knows his parents hate it. It is for this reason that I don't ask him to please get rid of it, altho I wish he would.

Is there some way I can get him to shave it off without making him feel he would be yielding to those who have been bugging him about it.

LISA

DEAR LISA: Having made your preference known, say no more. People, like beards, grow. And one day your boy friend might outgrow the need to cling to something only because he knows his parents don't like it.

DEAR ABBY: For years, whenever my husband and I have had a quarrel, he has written, his side of it to his mother, and she in return has sent (addressed to both of us) acid letters, condemning me and blaming me for ruining her son's happiness. For about a year I have refused to read her letters, so my husband has been reading these letters aloud to our children, ages 8, 13, and 16.

I have always felt that husband wife quarrels, no matter how trivial, were private, so I have tried not to quarrel in front of our children. And I certainly would not think of writing to my parents about our differences. I've tried to get this across to my husband without success. He claims that parents should know how their children's lives are, and that our children are old enough to realize that not only "he" thinks I am in the wrong all the time.

The children ask me questions about their grandmother's letters, and I don't know what to do about the whole mess.

FED UP

DEAR FED: Some counseling from a competent, impartial third party might improve your marriage. If it doesn't, your alternative is to clear out and take the children with you. Suggest that to your husband. If you continue to hang around while he tries to punish you in the manner you describe, it's a toss-up as to who's sicker — you or your husband.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

GUILTY: (Comment) I used to laugh at some of the answers you gave about sex. I thought you were pretty naive. Now I know I was wrong.

I slipped. I didn't believe my boy friend loved me. I had to have proof. I got it, but I also got a terrible feeling of guilt.

I didn't get pregnant, and I don't have VD. Just the same, I'm really paying. Never again will I let a couple minutes of pleasure cause such misery.

I've learned that sexual intercourse is not for 16-year-old kids going steady but for mature people who can accept responsibilities.—Hurt in Virginia.

(A.) Your letter proves that pregnancy and venereal disease are not the only penalties a girl may pay for letting matters get out of control.

A MESS: (Q.) My hair is a mess. It is dull, and it always feels dirty. I've heard of shampoos that give hair blonde or red highlights. Would they damage mine in the shape it's in?—Flop Top in Boston.

(A.) No. But you sound as if you need the help of a good stylist to put your hair into shape. She could also advise you what tint would be the best for you, and perhaps apply the first one.

(Want personal answers to your questions? Write to Jean Adams, Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001. Only letters that include a stamped, self-addressed envelope will be answered)

Not Slick, But Warm Show

NEW YORK (AP) — Television has a tradition, the Bob Hope Christmas show. This year's broadcast, Thursday night on NBC, was almost indistinguishable from those of past years. That's the way it is planned.

Bob's jokes and topical cracks vary with location and the progress of the war, but not much. His troupe was loaded as usual with pretty girls who sing, dance, exchange insults with the star and draw sighs from the audience.

The real stars of the 90-minute program, as usual, were the American servicemen in the audiences. The cameras seemed to focus more often and linger longer this year than usual on their faces. The sights of these men—some audiences numbered 26,000—are the most important and moving ingredients in the unusual program.

Even so, viewers had an opportunity to see almost the whole Hope show, one act at a time as it was played on temporary stages that ranged from the deck of an aircraft carrier to a structure at an airport.

Hope's Christmas show is always one of the most popular programs of the season. Shot under difficult conditions in bits and pieces on an around-the-world trip, it is far from a slick production. But it has heart, warmth and sentiment.

Daytime television—largely soap operas, audience participation shows and reruns of situation comedies—tends to be a reliable if rarely stimulating time killer or work companion.

Occasionally, however, something special—usually unheralded—comes along. Thus it was on Wednesday when Dinah Shore, in her NBC morning series, had Frank Sinatra as her guest. His assignment was to cook up his favorite tomato sauce for a platter of spaghetti. He did it with the skill and concentration of a male Julia Child, too.

Towel tucked professionally in his belt, Sinatra was in a funny, gracious mood. Miss Shore, at ease with an old friend, handed Frank the onions and slotted spoon on demand. Occasionally they broke into song. It was really a delightful 30 minutes; the food looked good too.

Dinah's show, which started about six months ago with a hectic pace, has simmered down to a truly entertaining, often helpful program.

"You are on the National Laws Commission," said our old friend, the unlucky expert. "You have abolished honors in duplicate play. When are you going to get rid of this anachronism in rubber bridge?"

The answer to that question is that honors will probably remain in rubber bridge forever. North America might want to eliminate them but somehow or other we don't believe that Europe will ever go along.

Now let's look at the hand that caused his latest outburst. He sat North and would have had no trouble making his no-trump game with at least one over trick.

Playing at four hearts, South lost no time going one down when West opened his singleton spade. East took ace and returned the queen. South played his king. West ruffed and led back the 10 of diamonds, whereupon South had no way to keep East from scoring tricks with the king of diamonds and another high spade.

Do you see how South could have made his contract in spite of the defense? It wouldn't have been at all difficult. He should have let East's queen of spades hold the second trick. East would have been unable to do anything much better than to lead another spade.

West would still ruff South's king and still shift to the 10 of diamonds, but it would not have done him any good.

South would have gone right up with dummy's ace. Then he would lead another spade and ruff it high. After that it would have been easy to draw trumps, enter dummy with the king of clubs and discard the queen of diamonds on the fifth spade.

Legislators, MHIA— Oppose Aid to Strikers

By TIM SCHUSTER

FISHKILL

Area state leglislators engaged in verbal exchange with the largest group of members ever to attend The Mid-Hudson Industrial Association's legislative dinner Thursday night at Holiday Inn, Fishkill.

A point of contention brought out by members of the association was opposition to giving unemployment benefits to strikers, and all four legislators agreed that this situation should be changed. They are State Senators Jay P. Rolison (Dutchess and Ulster) and Richard E. Schermerhorn (Orange and Rockland); and Assemblyman H. Clark Bell (Ulster) and Emeel S. Betros (Dutchess).

MHIA Executive Vice President William K. Hayes and President Curtis Williams painted a bleak business picture and gave two primary reasons why industry is allegedly leaving New York State: a per capita state and local tax burden that is the nation's highest, and the unemployment benefits to striking workers.

Bell offered some comments on the second point, while saying that there is a "general tone of pessimism in the legislature" because of the budget deficit outlined by Governor Rockefeller.

He said that one should not penalize a person who is striking in Dutchess County as the result of orders from Detroit or Chicago union bosses, calling it the "fallout factor" and emphasizing that modifications would be necessary to any law replacing the current setup.

In extensive discussion on the state's role in education, Bell said that he would be in favor of the 12-month scheme if it could be shown that would really save money while at least maintaining quality.

Alan Flans, an MHIA member and a commisioner of the state's Fleischman Commission which is studying education, urged the legislators to give particular attention to the Commission's finding, adding that he felt the 12-month school year is "the most important piece of legislation" to come before the Senate and Assembly this year.

While emphasizing that the Commission was not yet ready to publish official recommendations, Flans made it clear that he recommended the plan. He said that the major stumbling block to the proposal seemed to come from upstate recreation businesses, but that it would actually benefit them the most because it would become a 12 month a year business.

Rolison responded to a question on his position regarding Sen. Earl Brydges' casino proposition by saying, "It caught me off base. I have opposed this type of operation in the past, and don't think this is the direction we ought to take to raise revenues." He added that he had no objections to a feasibility study.

Bell told the industrialists that "we are not going to solve the welfare question by getting more money from Washington." And he announced his intentions of supporting the concept of federalizing welfare.

To support this he noted that recipients in Mississippi might receive $40 a month, while they would get $231 a month in Dutchess County plus rent, utilities, and food stamps. So they move to New York to improve their lot. "It's the greatest example of laissezfaire capitalism there is," he commented.

He mentioned the recent case of a man who worked for Ulster County, making $6,800 a year, who figured his family could receive $9,100 on welfare. So he quit his job.

Rolison said that he and Bell both supported a residency requirement for welfare, but were told it was unconstitutional.

Rolisop, Bell, and Betros came out in favor of repealing the Blaine Amendment in session, thus giving the public a chance to give its opinion in a November referendum, while Schermerhorn said he "would not support the repeal" of the Blaine Amendment.

The amendment provides that certain types of direct aid cannot be given to private school children. Bell said it was incnsistent with the First Amendment of the federal constitution.

Conservation Topic At Paltz Meeting

By LYNN MULVANEY

NEW PALTZ

Conservation practices, as applied in the New Paltz area by interested agencies, organizations and individuals, were explored at a well attended meeting Wednesday night sponsored gy the Garden Club of New Paltz at the New Paltz Savings Bank.

Among guset speakers were Arthur Kurtz, representing the State Department Office of Conservation at New Paltz; Francis E. Mulvaney, district conservationist, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Soil Conservation Service; Roderick Dussel, Ulster County Farm Bureau; Gerald LaRoche of the SUNY Project Your Environment group; Mrs. Manuchehr Afzal of the AAUW Conservation Workshop; Mrs. Richard Klix, president of the Garden Club; Ann Baker of the New Paltz High School earth Day Association; Mrs. Hazel Bartz, Girl Scouts.

Mrs. Jacobson, chairman of the local conservation workshop of the New Paltz League of Women Voters conducted the meeting which was preceded by a slide presentation made by Mrs. Keith Smiley of the Garden Club concerning the recycling of organic matter.

Kurtz told those attending that the State Conservation Department Office in New Paltz, which used to be primarily concerned with fish and game conservation, is now chiefly engaged in research into the environmental impact of plans for flood control, power plant installations and highway department plans.

District Conservationist Mulvaney told of the work of his department in the area of soil surveys which are being conducted throughout the entire county. Soils information dealing with lands along the Wallkill River in New Paltz and presented to Springtown Road residents as an aide to zoning, has led to further requests for similar information pertaining to the entire Town of New Paltz.

Farm Bureau member Dussol stressed his organization's seeking conservation legislation and told of a new law which will prevent the sale of chemical pesticides to anyone other than professionals.

LaRoche, of the college environment group said that members are mainly engaged in study of the subject but are also collecting newspapers as a practical conservation measure.

Mrs. Afzal advised that her AAUW group has been studying the subject of pesticides and is looking into recycling with the idea of collecting newspapers and aluminum cans.

Garden Club president, Mrs. Klix described her group's work with conservation exhibits and the building of bluebird houses, nine of which are presently at the Little Wings Bird Sanctuary in New Paltz. The group also worked in an anti-litter campaign, sponsored a poster contest and has planted many trees and shrubs throughout the town.

Earth Day Association representative, Miss Baker, said students at the high school conducted an assembly on conservation, helped clean up local roads and are now taking water samples from the Wallkill for a bacteria count.

Road cleaning was also accomplished by local Girl Scouts, whose representative Mrs. Hazel Bartz told of their having collected two and one-half tons of trash in one day. They were aided by some members of the Garden Club in the project.

Other persons appearing at the meeting were: Miss Jane Little of the Springtown Community Association who made a plea to young people to consider the dangers to the ecology that snowmobiling present.

Also, Miss Grace Elliott of the D&H Canal Association and Robert Pyle of the Town Planning Board.

The League of Women Voters told of agreeing that a conservation advisory committee of five to nine members, appointed by the New Paltz Town Board would be beneficial to the town.

Armbands OK

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Thursday students may wear black armbands to school.

"After all, over 44,000 Americans have died in Vietnam, and all of us must mourn them," the court said. The ruling overturned an earlier decision by a federal court in Dallas which prohibited the armbands in that city's school.
